The Vikings Vow, "We will be back!"

The New Paltz Parade and Regatta, an annual event on the Wallkill River took place this past Sunday.

Thousands of spectators lined the river banks as homemade watercraft raced down the Wallkill, then under the bridge in New Paltz, to the finish line.

Awards didn't only go to the winner of the race, but there were awards for several creative categories.

Among the watercraft was a Viking vessel manned by a three person Viking crew. The crew, and members of the team were joined by President of Viking Industries Inc., Rich Croce who sponsored the cardboard Viking ship that was designed and built by Viking Industries employees. Viking Industries was incorporated in 1973 and is recognized as a leading manufacturer and distributor of high quality corrugated packaging products and services. It is located at 89 S. Ohioville Road in New Paltz, New York 12561.

This was the first year for the Viking team and their vessel, but they assured us that they will be back and will start plans tomorrow for next year's regatta.

There were ten watercraft in all in this year's race and each vessel in a sense, was a real winner!

NEVERSINK NEWS

Have a good week and God Bless. (Call Hulda at 985-2268 with your Neversink news.)

Daniel Pierce Library Needs Your Support on June 12 (From Pg. 1)

Volunteer work on the construction project itself has greatly reduced the cost of the project. People donated their time, energy and resources - showing up to hammer, dig, clean, build, plant. They all offered whatever they could to create this beautiful structure. Also, an endowment fund is being created to help support the maintenance of this magnificent new facility.

The building was designed with the goal of minimizing operating expenses. Sight lines from the circulation desks reduce the need for additional staff. The geothermal heating and cooling system eliminates the need for fossil fuel consumption. In addition, the state-of-the-art insulation and off-hour thermostatic controls enable us to heat and cool the plant for 1/3 the estimated cost of conventional heating and cooling. Electrical consumption is reduced through motion detector switches, more efficient lighting fixtures, variable speedometers on the geothermal system and energy-saving equipment.

As the library expansion program nears completion, it becomes necessary to request an additional $79,500 for annual operating expenses. The new facility is six times larger than the original facility. Although the new structure has been built without levying any taxes, the library will need your support to cover the day-to-day cost of running the library, offering its programs, and providing meeting space for the many community groups that are using the building since it became available in June of 2011. For these services, the average taxpayer in the town of Neversink will only have to pay approximately an additional $7.55 for the whole year - the cost of a burger and fries!

Thank you for your support. Please don't forget to vote on Tuesday, June 12, at the Daniel Pierce Library, from noon to 9:00 p.m., and please attend our informational meeting on Tuesday, June 5, at 7:00 p.m.

Town of Neversink to Host Free Residential Energy Savings Workshop to Help Homeowners Reduce Their Energy

The Town of Neversink will host a Free Residential Energy Savings Workshop to help homeowners and renters learn about free energy assessments, incentives for energy efficiency improvements and low-cost financing opportunities to help them reduce their energy bills. The event will take place on Saturday, May 12th from 10:00 - 11:30 am at Town Hall, 273 Main Street, Grahamsville, NY 12740.

An energy-efficient home costs less to heat and is more comfortable to live in, with fewer drafts, consistent temperatures throughout rooms, increased ventilation and humidity control. Event attendees will learn how to take advantage of the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority's (NYSERDA) Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® Program, which helps homeowners reduce energy use and annual energy costs by an average of $700 or more.

Home Performance with ENERGY STAR uses a "whole-house" comprehensive assessment approach to home energy usage. Homeowners work with contractors trained in building science and accredited by the Building Performance Institute (BPI). The contractor looks at the entire house, not just one room or a single problem area, and recommends improvements for saving energy.

In addition, information will be provided about additional free programs and incentives based on income eligibility.

The Free Residential Energy Savings Workshop will feature presentations by Mid-Hudson Energy $mart Communities and Sullivan Alliance for Sustainable Development on how to access these free programs. Representatives from both organizations will be available to help homeowners sign up for free comprehensive energy assessments.

All homeowners are encouraged to attend this Free Residential Energy Savings Workshop. Pre-register by calling 845-985-2262 ext. 301. Walk-ins are welcome.

Sullivan Launches County "SustainableSullivanCounty" Website New resource to help Sullivan County residents save money, be more energy efficient

There is a new online resource in Sullivan County that will help residents and businesses lower their energy use, and even save money on their utility bills.

Sullivan County Legislative Chairman Scott Samuelson today announced the launch of http://sustainablesullivancounty.org/index.html, a new website that provides residents, businesses and municipalities' connections to rebates and incentives, educational resources, tips to manage energy consumption, and helpful interactive tools.

SustainableSullivanCounty.org also highlights County-wide projects and provides coverage of news and events related to energy conservation in local towns and villages.

"Sullivan County is launching SustainableSullivanCounty.org in order to help Sullivan County businesses and residents make smart energy and cost saving investments in their homes and offices," said Chairman Samuelson. "The web site and related newsletter are free, at no cost taxpayers, and will assist our residents, municipalities and businesses to secure energy efficiency incentives, grants, contractors and educational resources. Those who have previously paid taxes and Systems Benefit Charges on their utility bills will benefit from the use of these incentives and ultimately realize a better return on their investment."

SustainableSullivanCounty.org was recently developed through a partnership with Blue Springs Energy LLC, an organization that helps communities participate in clean energy programs. Blue Springs Energy LLC assists companies, local governments and individuals to access clean and renewable energy grants, incentives and credits.

"Blue Springs Energy is thrilled to support Sullivan County's efforts to help its residents, businesses, and not-for-profit organizations save money on their energy bills and help the environment," said Larry Simpson, President of Blue Springs Energy, LLC. "The SustainableSullivanCounty website and newsletter provides useful information on Federal tax credits, NY State programs, utility incentives, private sector resources, and energy efficient projects across Sullivan County."

DORKY DANDELIONS

By Peggy DeWire
"Hi Peggy, I'm over here in the garden," Sally called. "Come in for coffee after I finish weeding the dandelions out of this last row."

I leaned against the white picket fence around her neat garden with its tidy rows of plants and looked at the dandelions scattered here and there and agreed, "Yep, they're dorky all right."

This alien weed from Europe (Taraxacum offincinale in the Composite family) is so common on lawns and fields everywhere that it hardly needs description. Everybody knows the familiar yellow flower, jagged leaves and lovely white seed balloon. All nine species of dandelions got named from their jagged edged leaves that look like teeth in a lions jaw - a corruption of the French dent-de-lion.

In Grahamsville dandelions usually bloom twice in summer, May-June and September. They range over the whole land in cities and countryside, growing from saucer size leaf rosettes up to platter size with huge two-foot long strap leaves in Alaska. I saw these jumbos thriving in Anchorage city lots and lawns.

Some southern species are called wild lettuce (Lactuca canacensis), growing two feet tall with white flowers.

"Let's have dandelion coffee," Sally said, "I've gotten pretty good at roasting the roots in a slow oven till they're all dried, then grinding them in the blender."

Over a fragrant cup of coffee we talked leisurely until Sally pointed to a big crock sitting in the pantry. "I'm making dandelion wine again with that great recipe you gave me last summer. What a pretty gold color and good taste.'

I smiled back. "Sally, I've got another dandelion surprise for you to try. When you're out picking young tender leaves for salad, also get the little hard green flower buds to pickle. Use any bread-and-butter pickle recipe and substitute the dandelion buds for cucumber slices.

As I walked back home later, I thought about how these common weeds were a staple food source for songbirds, especially goldfinches and chickadees and for grazing animals like deer that munch the green leaves and blossoms.

I once had a pet baby groundhog orphan (its mom had been killed beside a highway) that I brought home to raise. We would walk around the yard together as he nibbled the lawn and kept an eye on me as I flipped him dandelion flower heads. He ate them quickly like a child stuffing down popcorn. To him dandelions were definitely not dorky.

MYSTERIOUS BOOK REPORT NO. 4 - by John Dwaine McKenna

Today is the spring equinox: the day we have equal parts of light and dark. It marks the day that sunlight starts to gradually increase, until the third week in June, when we mark the summer solstice, which is the longest day of the year, and then the days will have less sunlight until the autumnal equinox, and in December the winter solstice, or longest night of the year. It also marks the first day of spring. The seasons are ever-changing in an inevitable, but unchangeable cycle: spring, summer, fall, winter.

The seasons of course, are one example of any number of cycles: some inevitable, some not. The cycle we're looking into in this week's MBR is Irish Diaspora. In an unchanging and mind numbing confluence of numbers the youth of Ireland have been emigrating since 1847, the year the Irish potato famine began. It's estimated that, at present, 10,000 times more persons with Irish surnames live outside Ireland than in it.

And hey, don't worry I'm getting to the point . . .

This week's MBR is by another Irish writer named Adrian McKinty. His novel is, Dead I May Well Be, (Scribner, 2003, $19.99, 384 pages, ISBN 978-0-7432-5355-0) which follows the trail of Michael Forsythe as he leaves Belfast, Northern Ireland to work for a shady Irish ex-pat named Darby White in New York City. Darby is a mid-level criminal in the organization of Seamus Duffy: the head of the Irish mob in New York City. Michael is a low-level soldier, a thug, in the criminal hierarchy. Their area of operations is the upper west side of Manhattan, in the heart of Harlem. Their business is drugs and mayhem, at which Michael excels. When he starts having a fling with Darby's girlfriend however, things go to hell in a hand basket. The action is non-stop and violent, with frequent references to pop culture, Irish slang, and classical literature. McKinty's writing is alive with crackling dialogue and witticisms, along with the occasional sarcasm and bon mot. He's a writer I'll be watching and enjoying in the future. I'm looking forward to more of his work. You will too if you like 'em really hard-boiled.

Hard-boiled, soft-boiled, procedural, thriller, cozy or noir, you'll find them all at your local library, along with a group of smiling, knowledgeable, and helpful librarians to assist and guide you if needed. You won't know if you don't go . . . so visit the library and you'll never be bored again.

And I'd like to close this column by thanking all of you who have visited my website: johndwainemckenna.com

Nevele Grande Hotel and Country Club Purchase Finalized (From Pg. 1)

If casino gaming is approved for the resort, Nevele Investors LLC anticipates up to a $500 million redevelopment, which would transform the current site into a resort and casino employing as many as 1,000 people. The investment group intends to preserve several of the Nevele's iconic elements, including the tower, entrance lobby and ice rink. The investment group also plans to re-open the Nevele's professional golf course and to restore it to its former championship-level status.

"It's a first step in realizing our vision for a redeveloped Nevele resort and revitalized Catskills region," said Michael Treanor, CEO of Nevele Investors LLC. "The purchase is a key step in a regional initiative to drive tourism and stimulate area businesses. The Nevele has always been central to the regional economy, and our plan would restore it to its former use and prominence."

The Nevele Grande has been closed since 2009 and the property had gone into receivership prior to the purchase by Nevele Investors LLC.

The town boards of both Wawarsing and Ellenville have unanimously passed resolutions endorsing inclusion of the Ellenville/Wawarsing region in state legislation permitting casino gaming. Ulster County Executive Mike Hein, Ulster County Legislature Chairwoman Terry L. Bernardo, Wawarsing Town Supervisor Scott Carlsen and Ellenville Mayor Jeff Kaplan have all indicated strong support.

"I congratulate the Nevele Investors LLC group on finalizing the purchase of the Nevele resort property," said County Executive Hein. "Ulster County looks forward to working with municipal leaders and the development team to ensure the revitalization of this incredible tourism destination. The opening of this historic property and the creation of jobs is critically important to our entire community.

"We're excited that this potential project is moving forward with the promise of needed investment and job creation," said, Chairman Bernardo. "The economic boost associated with the re-development of the historic Nevele Grande Hotel is critically needed in Ulster County and I, along with my colleagues on the County Legislature, look forward to working closely with all involved."

"It's very exciting news," said Supervisor Carlsen. "It would be a tremendously positive project in terms of really bringing people back to the Nevele, to Ulster County and the Catskills. My strong sense is that the community's initial reaction has been terrific and that especially as folks learn more about the plan, they're really going to be behind it.'

"Nevele would offer a real jewel," continued Mayor Kaplan, "and start a rehabilitation and restoration of the area after a recession that hit us very hard."

"I think the rehabilitation and revitalization of the Nevele is exciting news for our area," said Julie Cohen Lonstein, an Ellenville attorney and resident. "It will usher in a new era for our community and the entire area by providing a modern version of the Catskills resorts.'

"We have been engaging with the community and local business and civic leaders at the town and county level," said Larry Woolf a principal member of the investment team. "The members of the community have seen first hand the impact of the closure of local resorts, businesses and the loss of tourism and jobs. We look forward to meeting with county legislators, speaking with residents and joining with local businesses in working to eventually welcome employees and guests back to the Nevele," Mr. Woolf added.

Mr. Treanor and his team expect to focus heavily in the near-term on consolidating widespread local support both at the grassroots level and throughout Ulster County.

About Nevele Grande Hotel and Country Club

The Nevele property, located in the Town of Wawarsing, NY, just outside the Village of Ellenville, spans nearly 500 acres and was long considered the crown jewel of the booming Catskills resort industry. The Nevele, which opened its doors in 1903, was, for over a hundred years, one of the region's prime recreation and sporting destinations. The property includes over 450 hotel rooms in several buildings including an iconic nine-story tower. The property has numerous amenities, including a professional golf course which has hosted championship events, indoor and outdoor pools and tennis courts, a ski and toboggan slope, an art deco ski chalet with sunken fireplaces, a large outdoor ice rink with a stunning cantilevered roof, hiking trails, horseback riding stables, and an indoor fitness center. The site is convenient to the New York metropolitan area and is readily accessible from Route 17 (I-86) and U.S. Route 209. About Nevele Investors LLC

Assemblywoman Gunther Statement on NYC Commuter Tax

Monticello, NY - In response to Manhattan Borough President Scott Stringer's proposal to resurrect the New York City Commuter Tax, Assembly woman Aileen Gunther released the following statement:

"The proposal to bring back the New York City Commuter Tax is yet another attempt to subsidize New York City's mass transit system on the backs of Hudson Valley residents. To ask commuters paying upwards of $4 a gallon of gas, in addition to exorbitant tolls for roads an bridges to again reach into their pocket to support people commuting from Queens to Manhatta is unconscionable. It's the MTA Payroll Tax for individuals, and it simply cannot be allowed."

THE NEVERSINK CHRONICLES

by John Dwaine McKenna

Readers will delight at John Dwaine McKenna's masterful storytelling skills, as he introduces them to the people who were born, lived, and died in the Neversink region. From the early 1930's through the modern day era, McKenna gives readers a personal glimpse of the lives that were affected by New York City's relentless quest to provide water for its residents, while changing the lives of thousands of people who once lived in the region of the Neversink and Rondout Reservoirs. Timely and tragic, McKenna's stories capture the imagination, leaving readers to wonder, what would I do?

The Olive Jar - By Carol LaMonda

Big Brother The Olive Jar By Carol LaMonda

I first read 1984 by George Orwell in the fifties, probably for a high school book report. Impossible I thought. Impossible as Dick Tracy's radio/watch on the front page of the Sunday Funny Pages.

In the sixties I can remember calling Bruce's parents in Plattsburgh on Sundays. Bruce's dad, always a kidder, would answer, "How are you? You're looking good," pretending that he had a phone that could see us as well as hear us.

I re-read 1984 again, this time after the year had passed, and many of the science fiction ideas had become science fact. Still, the idea that our government could spy on us was frighteningly unreal; however, computers were gaining that capability to record mountains of data about each citizen.

Now, with technology monitoring every tweet and movement, I feel like even George Orwell would be shaking in his paranoid boots. How does that woman in the car's GPS know to tell me to turn right in .5 miles and then make a legal U-turn. Smart phones and televisions make me want to update my pajamas and ratty bathrobe for fear that someone is looking back at me curled up on the sofa.

EZ pass knows where I am going. The computer can "auto-fill" my personal information. Even my dog's flea and tick medicine comes in an e-mail addressed to my dog, Diva. Amazon knows what I have read and recommends what I should read next. Overstock.com reminds me about what I already bought and what might blend nicely with the area rug I purchased last winter. Satellites are snapping pictures of me as I walk, hair askew in my blue bathrobe, each morning as I get the newspa-

Pictures and video are captured surreptitiously and sent globally from anyone's cell phone. Cell phones can now do more than my first Apple IIe computer. Am I glad the cell tower in Olive wasn't yet functional when I was still teaching English. I can imagine myself on You-tube doing something dumb enough to be considered "viral." It would have captured the day I showed up with one blue and one red shoe. Same style, different colors.

I think I can imagine what the next important technological breakthrough will be. I am picturing personal "blocking shields" that people will desire to hide from the constant barrage of information bombarding us in the form of calls, texts, faxes, emails, etc. Our personal "shield" will allow us to wear torn jeans and worn sweatshirts and eat bags of salt and vinegar potato chips out of the view of myriad viewing devices.

My only fear is that this new "shield" will require yet-another password that I will not be able

RESERVOIR MUSIC NOTES- Fred Perry, Owner of Reservoir Music Center 711 Route 28, Kingston, NY 12401 - 845-657-6127.

Last week's Levon Helm viewing/funeral for the fans was a sad and somber affair, but at least it was closure. The shock of realizing you would never see him again was somewhat offset by, well, seeing him again!

Levon's casket was layed out, closed, on the Ramble stage, next to his drums, as it should be, and when you filed past you could see a slide show of photos of Levon being displayed on a large screen. I'm sure if you stayed there long enough, there'd have been all sorts of pictures, including ones of Levon on stage. There'd have to be! But when I got to the designated spot, the part of the slideshow that was playing was all pictures of Levon with his grandson, Lavon. The joy in that man's eyes was so evident in those pictures! He always had that, but this was something special! He obviously loved that little boy and got so much joy from him! It was amazing and beautiful to see, and it made me so happy that in his final years, besides the historic comeback he engineered, with the help of manager, Barbara O'Brian, he also got to have this beautiful personal happiness! And how lucky Lavon was to have got to spend time with the world's coolest grandpa!

But now that he is gone, I predict that his fame, his popularity as a recording artist and actor, and his legend as an American and international cultural icon will grow larger than life! And I really hope that The Levon Helm Band will carry on. They are simply too good to pass with Levon! The band has become adept at singing most of the songs in the repertoire in the years Levon battled cancer and his voice fell victim to it. They could simply carry on! They have the perfect drummer to fill the giant chair Levon vacated in Randy Ciarlante, who also is a singing drummer, like Levon, who also has a great, soulful voice, like Levon, who has a similar drumming style to Levon's, who previously was a member of The Band, and who was already in The

LHB playing double drums with Levon! The Levon

one of the greatest personal accomplishments, in musical history! Play on! Please?

They could continue on as The Levon Helm Band. After all, they are The Levon Helm Band. But that could confuse people who might somehow think that Levon, himself, is actually appearing, so I have a sug-gestion for the name of the Levonless Levon Helm Band - Live on! Or some combination or permutation thereof. Maybe The Live on Band. Whaddya think? I think I like it. Ask me again next week and I'll tell you for sure. Anyway, the important thing is just for this great rockin band, and the amazing music it plays, to live on under any name! I hope Larry and Amy agree.

I'm not really recommending much live music this week. I'm still real depressed about Levon. And all of the good music this week's in the city. Well, maybe not all. There were a lot of shows this week that normally would have been weekly picks, but I just still didn't feel like recommending anything, so I skipped all but the best. And the local bands that I do like (you know who you are) never send me their gigs (hint hint) so it's hard to pick 'em!

Thursday, May 3 - CHARLIE MUSSLEWHITE AND JOHN HAMMOND JR. at BB King's. Two

Blues legends on a double bill.

Friday, May 4 - JUNIOR MURVIN, who did the original "Police and Thieves", which The Clash covered, is at BB King's. At least, I think it's Junior Muryin It's billed as "Junior Marvin", but I'm assuming that's a typo.

The RED HOT CHILI PEPPERS have become one of our best, most innovative, and smartest bands around. Tonight they start a two day run at The Prudential Center in Newark, NJ, which, of course, concludes tomorrow, Saturday, May 5.

Tuesday, May 8 - This event at BB King's is being billed as "A TRIBUTE TO LEVON HELM WITH THE THE BAND BAND". Get it? The, The Band, Band. These guys do the catalog of The Band, and they do it very well, and tonight should be a very special night worth traveling for Wednesday, May 9 - THE BEACH BOYS are doing a 50th anniversary tour this summer WITH Brian Wilson. To me, that's exciting. Tonight they're at The Beacon Theater.

May next week be better than the last two.

PROSILIO

The Family Memoir, PROSILIO...

... in Greek means "Toward the Sun," was written by Carol Olsen LaMonda. Carol writes the column "The Olive Jar" for Ye Olde Tri-Valley Townsman. This local author has been busy guesting at book clubs who have chosen this local memoir as their book choice. As summer approaches, the story of a carefree vacation in the Catskills should be added to your summer "must-read" list. The memoir is available at Amazon or Barnes and Noble on-line as a soft or hard cover or as a downloadable e-book for Nook or Kindle. Go to amazon.com or barnesandnoble.com and type in Prosilio in the search to order your copy of Prosilio

Carol La Monda spent one memorable childhood summer in 1956 with her family at a quiet, peaceful farmhouse in New Paltz, New York. Four mothers and ten kids ruled the roost in a Spartan farmhouse as the fathers worked in the city. It was a time of love and joy-a glorified, low-brow summer camp for the city cousins. How could the children ever have guessed that the farmhouse held such a tragic secret?

In this Greek family, a tragedy unfolded at the farmhouse years before. Carol's great aunt Philanthe lost her brother, daughter, and granddaughters, at the hand of her murderous son-in-law. The murders were kept a secret from the childrena family secret that would only be unraveled many years later.

Prosilio: Toward the Sun is not a memoir of murder, revenge, or despair. Carol's great aunt not only survived the tragedy; she went on to live her life as an inspiration to her children and grandchildren. The children at the New Paltz farmhouse learned their own lessons that summer in 1956, thanks to the careful guidance of loving parents. It is always possible in life to walk away from the shadows, if only we learn to walk into the light of the sun.

UC Exec Hein Signs Solar Tax Exemption Applauds Legislative Sponsor Tracy Bartels

County Executive Mike Hein today signed a resolution exempting sales tax on the purchase and installation of residential solar systems in Ulster County. Legislator Tracy Bartels of New Paltz took the lead in reintroducing this legislation which originally passed in 2005 but never became effective.

"I applaud Legislator Bartels in taking the lead on this issue and putting into effect this important assistance to the residents of Ulster County and the Ulster County solar industry. We must continue to do everything in our power to promote the use of solar technology in Ulster County," stated County Executive Hein. "By signing this resolution, not only are we supporting our local solar industry but we are encouraging the further use of solar installations by lowering the cost of solar systems. I truly believe this legislation is a win/win for Ulster County and I urge lawmak-

Rondout Valley Organics CSA Spring Potluck on the Farm

Rondout Valley Organics (RVO), a local Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) project, is hosting its Spring Potluck on the Farm for members and those interested in joining for the 2012 season. The event takes place on Saturday, May 5th, from 4pm to 7pm, at Rusty Plough Farm in Ulster Heights. Folks are invited to bring a favorite seasonal dish to share, meet the farmers, tour the farm and find out more about RVO. New members who sign up at the event get half-off the annual $50.00 membership fee for 2012.

CSAs are a way for growers and con-sumers to share in both the bounty and the risks of farming. A farmer sells shares in the farm, also known as memberships, in exchange for a box of vegetables and/or other farm products that the member receives each week of the growing season. Farmers get payment early in the year, helping with cash flow, and a commitment from local consumers to support their work.

In return, consumers benefit from the freshest products, exposure to new vegetables and cooking ideas, building relationships with their farmers and investing in their local agricultural economy. Rondout Valley Organics CSA is unique in that it offers choice and flexibility to its members via a web-based ordering system. The cost is $300.00, which includes a non-refundable $50.00 membership fee and $250.00 for the member's account. The fee represents a commitment from the member and helps to cover the farmer's pre-season expenses such as printing flyers, seed purchases, fuel, etc, while the $250.00 fund a personal shopping account, rather than the purchase of a "share" in the

DEP Announces New Agreement with National Weather Service to Provide Up to $1M to Develop State-of-the-Art Streamflow Forecasts - Upgraded Forecast System Will Provide Water Supply Operators with

More Information

Environmental Protection Commissioner Carter Strickland today announced a new agreement with the National Weather Service in which DEP will provide the Weather Service with up to $1 million to help speed up the development state-of-the-art forecasts of water flows through streams in the watershed. Streamflow forecasts enable DEP water supply operators to better predict the amount of water that will enter reservoirs and as a result more accurately predict reservoir levels and water quality in the future. The enhanced streamflow forecasts will eventually be a part of DEP's Operations Support Tool (OST), a cutting-edge, $5.2 million integrated monitoring and modeling system that collects realtime data on stream inflow, water quality, and reservoir storage levels, integrates forecasts of future inflows, and applies system operating rules to predict future conditions in the water supply system. OST helps DEP make more informed decisions about how to operate the system to ensure reliable, high quality supplies by retaining water in advance of dry conditions and to release water in advance of wet conditions. The agreement will allow the National Weather Service to speed the development and implementation of the Hydrologic Ensemble Forecast Service (HEFS), which will provide probabilistic forecasts to help water supply operators understand the range and likelihood of river levels and as a result help them assess risk.

"This is a win-win situation for both DEP and our partners, the National Weather Service," said Commissioner Strickland. "NWS gets additional funds to pilot its new forecasting system in a discrete region, which will facilitate their eventual nationwide rollout. And DEP gets the cutting-edge forecasts needed for the Operations Support Tool much sooner than if we had to wait for the nationwide rollout."

"Effective partnerships with state and local government play a big role in our vision for a Weather-Ready Nation, and our agreement with NYCDEP is a great example," said Jack Hayes Ph.D, director, National Weather Service. "With NYCDEP's help accelerating our schedule, we can improve our warnings for events that threaten lives and livelihoods and give sophisticated users, like DEP, the forecasts they need to optimize their water resources decisions based on their operating rules and risk tolerance."

The National Weather Service began experimental development of the ensemble forecasting capability several years ago and the nationwide implementation is scheduled for completion later in 2014. DEP's Operations Support Tool will be complete by 2013 and requires HEFS forecasts to provide the most use to system managers. NWS will use DEP funds to hire additional staff who will help speed the development of the system at the two offices that cover the New York City water supply region: the Middle-Atlantic River Forecast Center (MARFC) in State College, PA (covers Cannonsville, Pepacton, and Neversink Reservoirs) and the Northeast River Forecast Center in Taunton, Mass. (covers Schoharie, Ashokan, Rondout, and all East-of-Hudson reser-

The Hydrologic Ensemble Forecast Service will help water supply operators assess risk. For example, if a storm is forecast, HEFS will produce several different forecasts (an "ensemble") of peak river levels that provide an objective estimate of the uncertainty in the river forecast. Operators can use this information along with knowledge of current water supply conditions to assess risk and make more informed operational decisions. Current NWS operations provide only a single peak forecast with no estimate of forecast uncertainty.

The Operations Support Tool enables DEP's water supply operators to more accurately predict water storage levels in the city's reservoirs so that DEP can better manage the movement of water throughout the reservoir system, and ultimately, to the nine million New Yorkers who rely on the city's drinking water every day. It substantially increases DEP's operational responsiveness and the ability to protect water quality and improve the aquatic habit below the reservoirs.

DEP manages the city's water supply, providing more than one billion gallons of water each day to more than nine million residents, including eight million in New York City, and residents of Ulster, Orange, Putnam and Westchester counties. This water comes from the Catskill, Delaware, and Croton watersheds that extend more than 125 miles from the City, and the system comprises 19 reservoirs, three controlled lakes, and numerous tunnels and aqueducts. (Contd. Pg. 12) National Weather Service (From Pg. 10)

DEP employs nearly 6,000 employees, including more than 750 scientists, engineers, surveyors, watershed maintainers and others professionals in the upstate watershed. In addition to its $49 million payroll and $132 million in annual taxes paid in upstate counties. DEP has invested more than $1.5 billion in watershed protection programs-including partnership organizations such as the Catskill Watershed Corporation and the Watershed Agricultural Council-that support sustainable farming practices, environmentally sensitive economic development, and local economic opportunity. In addition, DEP has a robust capital program with a planned $13.2 billion in investments over the next 10 years that creates up to 3,000 construction-related jobs per year. Julian Schreibman Earns Spot in DCCC's Competitive Red-to-Blue Program

Julian Schreibman, Democratic candidate for the New York 19th, announced today that he earned a spot on the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee's (DCCC) highly competitive Red-to-Blue program. Julian's campaign has surpassed demanding fundraising, organizing, and infrastructure goals and skillfully demonstrated to voters that he is a problemsolver who will protect the middle class when elected to Congress.

"I am honored that so many people in the Hudson Valley/Catskills Region have joined our grassroots campaign to create jobs, stand up for middle class families, protect Medicare and Social Security and fight for the American dream," said Julian Schreibman. "The early strength we have demonstrated by being named to the Red to Blue program means we have the support, confidence, and momentum it takes to win in November.

"As a former prosecutor who helped convict al Qaeda terrorists, Julian Schreibman knows what it means to protect the people of New York. Julian is building a strong grassroots campaign that focuses on creating good jobs and standing up to the extreme Republican agenda of ending Medicare while protecting tax cuts for billionaires and Big Oil." Said DCCC Chairman Steve Israel.

The DCCC's Red to Blue program highlights top Democratic campaigns across the country, and offers them financial, communications, grassroots, and strategic support. The program will introduce Democratic supporters to new, competitive candidates in order to help expand the fundraising base for these campaigns.

Preventing Foreclosure: State Foreclo-sure Specialist Assistance coming to Monticello

State Senator John J. Bonacic and Department of Financial Services Superintendent Benjamin Lawsky will host the State's mobile foreclosure prevention "command" center, which is designed to help homeowners either in foreclosure, or at risk of foreclosure, become aware of their options.

The 36 foot van, which allows for private meetings with foreclosure prevention specialists, will be located in Middletown and Monticello this week:

FRIDAY, MAY 4, 2012: TOWN OF THOMPSON TOWN HALL: 4052 Route 42, Monticello, NY 12701 (near Staples in Monticello). The mobile center will be on site from 11:00 AM to 7 PM.

Housing foreclosure specialists will be on site with the Mobile Command Center Van to counsel local homeowners on state and federal programs that may be able to keep them in their homes, provide information about loan modification programs and work with homeowners' mortgage lenders. Specialists can assess where homeowners are in the pre-foreclosure or foreclosure process and advise them by: providing information about specific loan modifications available under federal law; directing aggrieved or abused homeowners to programs and agencies which are actively engaged in pursuing claims related to mortgage servicer abuses.

Senator Bonacic said that any homeowner who seeks to utilize the service, which is free, should bring any paperwork associated with their mortgage that is available to them. Examples of such documents include any foreclosure lawsuit which was started against the homeowner, or a notice of foreclosure, or other documents from their bank detailing late payments. In addition, if possible, the homeowner should know their mortgage interest rate, whether it is fixed or adjustable, and how many years the mortgage was for when it was taken out.

The Financial Services Department has also initiated a foreclosure hotline, 1-800-269-0990 or 518-457-1654, open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

> Investigation Reveals Dirtman's Actions Pollute Part Of The NYC Watershed

> Attorney General Eric T. Schneiderman, joined by New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Joe Martens, announced today that a grand jury has indicted Anthony Adinolfi (aka "Dirtman") for the operation of two large unpermitted construction and demolition debris landfills within the New York City Watershed, which provides approximately 1.2 billion gallons of drinking water to nearly one-half the population of New York State every day. From approximately January 2010 through October 2011, these illegal landfills, located at 737 Croton Falls Road and 618 Barrett Hill Road, both in Putnam County, had been accepting construction and demolition debris containing waste such as tile, plastic, coal, and coal ash, in violation of numerous environmental statutes. Some of these materials eroded and were discharged into nearby New York State waters, including the Croton Falls Reservoir, which is part of the water supply that provides drinking water to New York residents.

"Polluting our state's watershed by dumping dangerous waste into illegal landfills is deplorable, and this individual will be held accountable for committing these serious crimes," said Attorney General Schneiderman. "Our office will continue to prosecute environmental criminals who put the health and safety of New Yorkers at risk to make a profit. There is no excuse for this kind of misconduct.'

State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Joe Martens said, "DEC will vigorously pursue those individuals who disregard state environmental laws for personal gain. Illegal dumping affects not only the area where the material is dumped but also harms nearby waterways. The New York City watershed supplies drinking water to millions of New Yorkers. DEC will not tolerate illegal disposal of hazardous materials in this or in any of the state's watersheds."

Environmental Conservation Law Article 27 and the underlying regulations provide that no person may construct or operate a solid waste management facility without first obtaining a permit from DEC. Solid waste management facilities are also subject to strict operational and closure requirements to avoid the adverse impacts to public health and the environment associated with solid waste. According to the felony complaint filed November 29, 2011 in Carmel Town Court, Adinolfi, the defendant, agreed with private owners of the two watershed properties that he would arrange for fill to be dumped on their property in order to fill in and grade steeply-sloped areas. Through 2010 and 2011, the complaint charges that the defendant arranged for hundreds of truck-loads of fill to be dumped on these two properties - sometimes as much as 10-15 truck loads per day.

Waste composition analysis of multiple samples taken from the debris dumped at these two properties showed that the samples contained coal ash and slag. Coal ash and slag typically contain hazardous substances and carcinogens.

Although New York State environmental laws and regulations prohibit charging fees for dumping this type of debris, Adinolfi charged truck drivers $75 per truck load for dumping privileges. Bank records show that between 2010 and 2011, Adinolfi, through his company Dirtman Enterprises Inc., earned over $300,000 from operating these unpermitted landfills.

The grand jury charged Adinolfi with several felony counts for violations of the New York State Environmental Conservation Law ("ECL"), including ECL § 71-2703(2)(for operating an unpermitted solid waste management facility, a class "E" Felony) and ECL § 71-1933(4)(a)(ii) (for causing stormwater discharges without a permit, a class "E" Felony). If convicted, Adinolfi could face up to 1 1/3 to 4 years in prison and hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines.

Adinolfi is also the defendant in a civil lawsuit filed in Supreme Court, Putnam County, by the State in October 2010 concerning his illegal operation of a landfill at 737 Croton Falls Road. The State has already obtained a preliminary injunction against Adinolfi and others prohibiting them from unlawfully polluting the City of New York's Croton Falls Reservoir, adjacent to the site. The lawsuit also seeks to require Adinolfi and others to remove the construction and demolition debris and other wastes disposed there, remediate the site, and pay civil penalties.

The criminal case is being prosecuted by Assistant Attorney General Jason P. Garelick of the Environmental Crimes Unit, under the supervision of Executive Deputy Attorney General for Criminal Justice Nancy Hoppock, Bureau Chief Gail Heatherly, and Deputy Bureau Chief Stephanie Swenton.

The investigation was conducted by Environmental Conservation Officer Keith Manners and Investigator

Enforcement, Bureau of Environmental Crimes

The Attorney General recognizes the diligent work of the DEC and OAG staff with whose cooperation the case developed, particularly Steven Parisio, DEC, Regional Solid Waste Geologist, and John Serrapica, OAG, Supervising Investigator and Forensic Accountant. The charges are merely accusations and the defendant is presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

DiNapoli: School District Tax Levy Growth Averages 3 Percent Statewide Under New

School district tax levies in the 2012-13 school year are limited to average increases of 3 percent under a new property tax cap law, in addition to any further increases approved by voter overrides of the cap, according to a preliminary analysis of data released today by State Comptroller Thomas P. DiNapoli's office.

"The majority of school districts are meeting the new spending limits," said DiNapoli. "The average growth allowed under the law amounts to about 3 percent but there are some school districts with double digit reductions or increases because of how the formula is calculated."

Under the new property tax cap enacted in 2011, school districts' tax levies may grow at a specific percentage based on a formula in the law. School districts may present a budget that is within the tax levy limit, which must be approved by a simple majority of voters. Or they may opt to present a budget that exceeds the limit, which must be approved by a 60 percent supermajority of voters. Districts that fail to pass a budget under either scenario could ultimately be required to adopt a contingency budget that allows no growth from the 2011-2012 school year tax levy.

The formula in the law allows school districts to account for certain exclusions, such as capital expenditures, payments in lieu of taxes (PILOTs) and pension costs, when calculating their tax levy. These adjustments can cause wide variations among tax levies from school district to school district. This year's calculated limits ranged from a 43 percent reduction in levy growth in one district to a 32 percent levy growth increase in another.

The analysis also revealed that higher rates of allowable growth occurred in school districts categorized as "high needs" due to their student profiles and relative wealth.

The law requires school districts to report how they calculated their tax levy limits to the Comptroller's office by March 1 each year. All of New York's districts have done so this year and their data is available on the Comptroller's Open Book New York website at www.openbooknewyork.com. The actual tax levies have not yet been reported by the school districts and will not be known until after the public votes on school budgets, which happens statewide on May 15.

District-by-district data is also available here: http://www.osc.state.ny.us/localgov/pubs/research/s

Beaverkill Fly Fishing

We hit the Beaverkill about 2:00p.m. The caddis fly hatch was absolutly fantastic. Thousand upon thousands of flies were in the air and every where. I had never seen so many flies on the water. I started out using size 14 elk hair caddis patterns on 4x tippet which is close to 5 pound test, rich use the old standard search fly a #12 Royal Coachman. These fish were extremely choosy and were very hard to hook. They would turn away at the last second. Our flies were not an exact match and they wanted what they wanted. I had 5 missed strikes in a row and then I hooked up. The fish was pretty powerful for its size and Town of Denning Message Board: http://www.denning.us Town of Neversink Website: http://town of neversink.org Daniel Pierce Library - http://www.danielpiercelibrary.org made 4 good runs on my old four weight bamboo fly rod. It felt good to break in this old rod as I had refurbished it with a set of new ferrules. I had picked it up last year and repaired it over the winter and was itching to give it a try. It cast very well and I was enjoying the action this Brown Trout was applying to this classic rod. I finally slipped it into the net. It was a fine 15 inch fish. a few minutes later Rich gave a shout and was into a nice fish himself. He had switched to the elk hair caddis I had given him a little earlier in the day and it was all he needed to catch his dinner.

We hit the same section of the famous Beaverkill River a few days later with no where near the fly action on the water. The caddis flies were a bit darker in color so I figuered I would try a Parachute Adams dry fly as it was kind of close to the color of the underside of these flies. It is also designed to slowly glide down to the water with its horizontal hackle tied so it catches the air more like a parachute. Well it was the right choice as I was into a fish right quickly. This fish screamed line off my reel like it was a 3 pounder. I am telling you it made about six runs and when I finally got it close and saw it's size, I was shocked. I thought maybe it was foul hooked the way it had so much power. I slipped the Brownie into the net, ALL !# INCHES OF HIM. I could not get over the power this fish had. It must have had it's Wheaties that morning, and no, It was not foul hooked either. It thourghly destroyed that new Parachute Adams though. All is fair in fly fishing for trout though.

Well the rain is on the way for the next week or so and is raining as I sit and write this article for you. I guess I will have to dig out the old rain poncho if I want to get any fishing in. SO GET OUT THERE AND ENJOY GODS GREAT WORLD AND BRING YOUR FISHING ROD ALONG. AND DON'T FORGET TO BRING YOUR CAMARA TOO AND MAKE SOME MEMORIES. AS ALWAYS, TIGHT LINES AND GOD BLESS--BOB VISIT MY SITE AT customflies.org AND IF YOU HAVE ANY TACKLE REPAIRS OR NEED SOMETHING SPE-CIAL, GIVE ME A CALL AT 845-292-5017

Knarf's Classic Movie Trivia -The Thief of Bagdad (1940) is one of the most amazing fantasy motion pictures of all time. An Arabian Nights Tale that is a classic among classics! One that thrills your every emotion, as a young thief faces amazing monsters to return Bagdad's deposed king to the throne.

Directed by Ludwig Berger, starring Tim Whelan, Michael Powell, Sabu, John Justin, June Duprez, Conrad Veidt, Rex Ingram, Miles Malleson, Mary Morris. A remarkable fantasy of native boy Sabu outdoing an incredible evil magician, Conrad Veidt, in this Arabian Nights Oscar-winning fable. Technicolor photography by Georges Perinal and Osmond Borradaile, special effects, and art direction. Ingram gives a splendid performance as a genie, vivid score by Miklos Rozsa. My favorite fantasy oldie. See it on TCM this Saturday, May 5, 2012, at 6:00 AM- C- 106 min, Rated TV-G.
