Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. Gives Keynote Address at Time and the Valleys Museum 2013 Exhibit Opening

Despite threats of a tornado and rain, the opening reception for the new exhibit, "Toil and Trouble: New York City's Quest for Water and the Rondout-Neversink Story " featuring keynote speaker Robert F. Kennedy Jr., was held last Wednesday at the Time and the Valleys Museum, in Grahamsville.

Kennedy is a strong supporter of maintaining fairness between the city and the watershed towns. The New York City watershed agreement, which he negotiated as a spokesman for environmentalists and the city's watershed consumers, is regarded as an international prototype in stakeholder consensus negotiations and sustainable development.

"Nature is the infrastructure of our community." Kennedy stated, "We need to protect our enviornmental infrastructure."

"The thing that was valuable about the Catskills was the people who lived here and we had to do something more complicated. We had to figure out how to make these communities work and how to give them a chance for dignity and enrichment and prosperity and good health while we protected the water."

Robert F. Kennedy Jr. is credited with leading the fight to protect New York City's water supply, but his reputation as a resolute defender of the environment stems from a litary of successful legal actions. Mr. Kennedy serves as Chief Prosecuting Attorney for the Hudson Riverkeeper and President of Waterkeeper Alliance. He is also a Clinical Professor and Supervising Attorney at Pace University School of Law's Environmental Litigation Clinic and is co-host of Ring of Fire on Air America Radio. (Contd. Pg. 8)

Bipartisan Legislation Would Protect Americans From Risks Posed By Exposure To Chemicals

Washington, D.C.-Today, U.S. Senators Frank R. Lautenberg (D-NJ), David Vitter (R-LA) Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) and Mike Crapo (D-ID) announced a groundbreaking, bipartisan agreement to modernize the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) and ensure the safety of everyday consumer products to better protect American families. Their legislation would significantly update and improve TSCA, which has proven ineffective and is criticized by both the public health community and industry. The Lautenberg-Vitter legislation would, for the first time, ensure that all chemicals are screened for safety to protect public health and the environment, while also creating an environment where manufacturers can continue to innovate, grow, and create jobs.

"For far too long, American families have been exposed to chemicals that have never been tested for safety," said Senator Gillibrand. "This bill will finally allow the EPA to test those chemicals that pose the greatest hazard to our children and pregnant women, and it will give the companies that manufacture the chemicals certainty that what they are selling is certified safe across all 50 States."

DEP Announes Recreational Boating Season has Begun 2013 Recreational Boating Season Attracted Nearly 1,000 Boaters from 12 States

New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Commissioner Carter Strickland today announced that the 2013 Catskill recreational boating program will begin Friday on four City reservoirs. Following a three year pilot program at Cannonsville Reservoir, last year, DEP significantly expanded the program, allowing kayaking, canoeing, and sailing on the Cannonsville, Pepacton, Neversink, and Schoharie reservoirs. The expanded recreational boating program resulted in a record number of visitors to City reservoirs, with nearly 1,000 DEP recreational boating permits issued last summer. This year, two new programs will further expand boating opportunities as part of DEP's effort to make the reservoirs more accessible and encourage tourism in the Catskills. April 1 marked the beginning of a pilot program that, for the first time, permits the use of electric trolling motors for fishing on Cannonsville Reservoir. DEP has also partnered with the Catskill Wastershed Corporation to purchase 30 boat storage racks that will be installed at the four reservoirs to allow businesses that rent recreational boats to store them onshore, making it easier for residents and vacationers to rent kayaks and canoes.

"By partnering with local nonprofits, businesses, and residents to think of new ways to improve the already popular Catskill recreational boating program, we are confident that this year's season will be a huge success," said Commissioner Strickland. "By providing ready access to rental boats, these programs will make it easier for residents and visitors to enjoy some of New York's most scenic waterways, and the expanded recreational boating program will provide another boost to the Catskill tourism economy."

Last year saw a record number of boaters on New York City's Catskill reservoirs. Nearly 1,000 recreational boat tags were issued to visitors from 12 different states. About 45 percent of those tags were issued to people who live outside the watershed, and 10 percent went to people from outside New York State. A total of 983 tags were issued for recreational boating last year, including 697 kayaks, 241 canoes, 31 rowboats, two sculls, and 12 small sail-boats. The program attracted 71 boaters from New York City, as well as vacationers hailing from Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, North Carolina, Georgia, Kansas, and Florida.

"Boating on the City-owned reservoirs is a unique experience that simply cannot be duplicated," said James Thomson, Delaware County's tourism director. "The crystal clear waters provide an unmatched view of fish and other wildlife in their natural habitat. This is an opportunity to be as close as possible to nature that is not available anywhere else.

"The opening of New York City reservoirs for recreational boating offers an ultimate experience for visitors and residents in the Catskill Region," said Roberta Byron-Lockwood, president of the Sullivan County Visitors Association. "This unique asset provides an unspoiled look at the natural beauty and adds yet another opportunity for water recreation. We applaud New York City DEP for its continued efforts to stimulate and enhance the quality of life for generations in the Catskills and New York State."

Recreational boating season in the Catskills begins the Friday before Memorial Day and lasts until Columbus Day. Boaters must have a permit that is available free of charge on DEP's website, www.nyc.gov/dep. Boats in the recreational program not stored at the reservoirs must be steam cleaned at a local vendor each time before launching on the reservoirs. A list of DEP-certified steam cleaning vendors is also available on DEP's website. Steam cleaning helps protect against invasive plants, animals, and microorganisms that can harm water quality and fisheries. Throughout the course of the recreational boating program, DEP has continuously tested water quality to ensure that none of the recreational activities has an adverse effect on New York City's drinking water supply.

Since 2003, DEP has significantly expanded the amount of City properties within the watersheds that are open for recreation. There are now 114,833 acres open for recreation, including 80,941 acres of land and 33,892 acres of reservoirs. Of that, 52,198 acres of land are in public access areas that are open to recreation without a DEP permit.

Expanding recreational opportunities in the watershed is one of the goals outlined in Strategy 2011-2014, a comprehensive strategic plan that outlines 100 distinct initiatives to help ensure DEP is the safest, most efficient, cost-effective, and transparent water utility in the nation.

For more information about recreational opportunities on New York City lands and waters, download or view, DEP's 2013 Watershed Recreation Newsletter. A copy has also been posted to the department's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/nycwater.

"Weeds. Shoots & Flowers" Learn How to Help Care for Gardens in Three Easy Classes

[FERNDALE] - The second of three free hands-on instructional trainings to help support and encourage volunteers to be comfortable doing gardening tasks will be held on Wednesday, June 5. "Weeds, Shoots & Flowers!" will give instruction on what to plant for a low maintenance, drought resistant garden. Weed control, pruning and dead heading will also be discussed.

Sullivan Renaissance is holding the classes to assist individuals who want to volunteer with Renaissance projects but aren't sure what to do.

Sullivan Renaissance Horticulture Coordinator Diana K. Weiner, the instructor for the series, said "the classes will take place indoors as well as outdoors, so you can really see and understand the gardening methods we will discuss."

Individuals will learn the basics of caring for a garden from start to finish - and be able to roll up their sleeves and help at a nearby community gardening project. Attendees who successfully complete all three classes will receive a completion certificate and a special gift from Sullivan Renaissance.

Those who missed "Soil, Water & Sun!" on May 1 may view it at YouTube.com. "Designing, Digging & Delegating!" will be presented on Wednesday, July 10. The classes are held from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at Cornell Cooperative Extension Sullivan County in the classroom and the teaching garden located at 64 Ferndale-Loomis Road in Liberty.

Sullivan Renaissance has funded gardening endeavors in 41 communities for 2103. Each of the organizations receiving a grant relies entirely on volunteer support to meet its goals. All of them can use additional help.

Training space is limited and pre-registration is requested for the classes. Refreshments will be provided. For more information or to register, contact Sullivan Renaissance at 845-295-2445 or www.sullivanrenaissance.org.

A tribute to the memory of all of the Townsman ladies that we have lost and loved so much... Peggy DeWire, Avril Pappa, Joan Hall and Polly Hill.

The Butterflies are Back

Have any of you noticed any Eastern Tiger Swallowtail (Papillioturnus) 'puddling' in your yard? We usually begin to see them in June and again in late summer when the second and third brood hatches. Often the male

T i g e r
S wallowtails congregate on mud, damp gravel, or puddles.
They extract sodium ions and amino acids from these sources which aid in reproduction.

This behavior is called puddling. Males that puddle are typically fresh, and puddle only for their first couple of days. Females will occasionally puddle, but do not form congregations like the males.

Male tiger swallowtails is yellow with four black "tiger stripes" on each fore wing with a few orange and blue spots near the tail, while the females may be either yellow or black, making them dimorphic (occurring in two distinct forms). The yellow morph is similar to the male, but with a conspicuous band of blue spots along the hind wing, while the dark morph is almost completely black. The dark form still has the blue spots, but it is otherwise very dark with no yellow. The northern Tiger Swallowtails that live in the Catskills are about three inches across, compared to their southern relatives that average five inches across. All are tiger striped and have the Papilio family trademark, a black tail on the hind wings.

Eastern Tiger Swallowtails are found all over, especially near water, but also in meadows, gardens, parks, and roadsides courageously flying above the tree canopy then down to the ground to feed or drink flying away again over the fields and into the woods. During courtship, the male and female fly about each other prior to landing and mating. The male releases perfume-like pheromones during courtship to entice the female.

Females lay their eggs singly on the host plant leaves, with little or no embryonic development within the mother. The egg is round and green, later turning yellowish-green with reddish dots. The size of the egg is large for a butterfly. It is .03 inches in height and .5 inch in width. A week later it hatches into a jade green caterpillar with two big white eyespots. Its first food is its own eggshell, then leaves and more leaves. It will molt three times as it grows bigger. When the caterpillars are fully grown, they will then become pupae (resting stage). The name for a butterfly pupa is chrysalis. Upon changing into a brown chrysalis, it will spin a single strong silk thread to support itself at a slant on a twig.

Then about ten days later a yellow butterfly will emerge and become a beautiful black-striped Tiger Swallowtail.

I'm willing to bet that most Americans don't know jack about Mormons, or Mormonism, or Salt Lake City, Utah . . . the heart of the Mormon empire. If they happen to be a little more savvy than their follow citizens, some few might recognize the Mormon Tabernacle choir from their Christmas concerts on television, or the BYU College football and basketball teams, and of course Mitt Romney, the former governor of Massachusetts and Republican presidential candidate, is perhaps the best-known Mormon in the entire country. But most folks don't know that Mormons do not use curse words or drink alcohol, smoke, lie or steal, that they devote two years of their young adult lives to a mission of proselytizing for the LDS Church in a foreign country chosen for them by church authorities, do not use stimulants such as coffee or tea, do not believe in nor practice illicit sex or sex outside of marriage? And, as if that weren't enough . . . each and every Mormon tithes ten percent of their gross income to the church and is expected to be self-sufficient enough to have a two-year food supply stored at home. But those are the devout ones . . . and not all Mormons are devout . . . and that's what makes this week's Mysterious Book Report so fascinating.

City of Saints, (Minotaur Books, $24.99, 321 pages, ISBN 978-1-250-01579-2) by Andrew Hunt is historical fiction at it's best . . . a murder mystery that takes place in 1930 in the unlikeliest of places, Salt Lake City, Utah, the spiritual center of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, known to all as the LDS or Mormon Church. The novel is the winner of the Tony Hillerman prize and is Mr. Hunt's first work of fiction.

As the novel begins, it's deep winter . . . February 22, 1930 in Salt Lake City. Art Oveson, a devout Mormon deputy sheriff and his partner, Roscoe Lund, a gentile with a coarse demeanor and a bad attitude, are waiting at a murder scene in the cold and snow, of a woman who's dressed in pearls and fur. She's a woman of apparent wealth and means, a woman whose body has been mutilated by being repeatedly run over with a heavy vehicle and left for the wild animals to find. Robbery is soon ruled out; she has money in her purse and jewelry on her person. She's identified as a socialite, the wife of a leading Salt Lake doctor, a famous, wealthy physician with impeccable credentials. The question then becomes who, and for what possible motive, would murder such a person as Helen Kent Pfalzgraf, married to Dr. Hans Pfalzgraf? But the deeper Deputy Oveson . . . a young inexperienced lawman . . . digs into the case, the more complex and disturbing it becomes. As each clue is unearthed, another aspect of the case is examined and peeled away like an onion, and a new layer is revealed underneath. Neither Mrs. Pfalzgraf, nor the good doctor are what they appear to be at first. Each and every new revelation produces new and more perplexing questions as this complex crime and investigation are artfully revealed by an excellent, new, crime fiction writer I'm sure we'll be hearing a lot more from in the future. This award-winning novel deserves to be read by all mystery lovers and especially those who live in or love the southwest. Andrew Hunt's City of Saints is one of the best books of the year. Do yourself a favor by getting to know him.

ERH Recognizes Graduate Nurses

(From Pg. 1) In 2006, Kelly was promoted to the role of Clinical Coordinator of the Kingston Hospital Emergency Department. In 2007, she earned her Board Certification in Emergency Nursing, and in the same year was promoted to Emergency Department Supervisor/Emergency Medical Services Coordinator at ERH. Kelly was named the ERH Emergency Department Nurse of the Year by the Ulster County EMS Association in both 2002 and 2008. In 2009, Kelly was promoted to Nurse Manager and in 2012 she was promoted to Chief Nursing Officer, a title she holds today. Ann Marie has earned the respect and admiration of her staff and peers by remaining true to herself and to those around her. She sets the bar high and demands excellence in patient care and a nurturing culture of compassion and caring. For her, Nursing is not just a profession; it is a way of life.

After earning her Associates Degree in Nursing from Ulster County Community College in 1995, Maria Gonzalez began her nursing career at Benedictine Hospital in Kingston NY, specializing in Oncology. In 1997, Gonzalez earned her OCN (Oncology Nursing Certification) through the Oncology Nursing Society. In 2003, she joined the staff at ERH as a staff nurse in the Emergency Department. Maria has fulfilled the role of staff nurse, charge nurse and nursing supervisor. She exemplifies and inspires her peers by mentoring compassion and competence. In 2007, Gonzalez earned her Board Certification in Emergency Nursing through the Emergency Nurses' Association. In 2009, Maria was named the ERH Emergency Department Nurse of the Year by the Ulster County EMS Association. In 2012, Gonzalez was promoted to Emergency Department & Emergency Medical Services Coordinator at ERH.

In addition, the hospital would like to recognize Kyra Ayers, Zoraida Castillo and Brian Whitehead, who earned their Associates in Nursing degree this month! Both Ayers and Whitehead began their work with ERH as Nursing Assistants, while Castillo has worked as both a Nursing Assistant and Patient Registrar. We look forward to working with them in their new role as Graduate Nurses!

The hospital is proud of the educational accomplishments of its staff and continues to encourage our staff to accomplish their career goals by accommodating work schedules and providing monetary support to its employees who wish to further their education.

The Olive Jar - Carol LaMonda

Memories

Here it is Memorial Day Weekend with the wood-stove cooking instead of the barbecue grill. Cold rain, wind and a hint of snow remind us that Mother Nature rules, not the calendar.

Memorial Day weekend is filled with memories. We remember times spent in the past with loved ones, honoring veterans we knew, and perhaps longing for the time when "terrorism" was something associated with a B-grade horror movie. Maybe the shift in weather might echo a shift in our thinking about why we celebrate Memorial Day. With yard sales dampened with spirit and wet merchandise, with barbecues moved indoors, and with camping holidays put on hold, we just might concentrate on the real reason we have this holiday.

My Memorial Day tradition is to watch the very short but sweet parade in Olive. I am proud of my husband who walks with the Town Board. Scouts march in uniform. Four-H pull rabbits in a wagon. Kate McGloughlin always drove her mom and Aunt Shirley, who were waves in WWII, in her little red convertible. Perhaps this year she will drive their pictures and their memories. The Onteora Band always plays "The Star Spangled Banner" and someone plays "Taps." I will once again get a lump in my throat as I remember my father's military funeral at Calverton. Ed Baldyga will sing "America the Beautiful" with every note pristinely perfect in pitch and with emotion that comes from the heart. The Veterans of the American Legion will march, and we will note the diminished number. Hal Anderson and Art Sampsen died this year, and our good friend Ed Swenson is always sadly missed. New Veterans, back from Iraq and Afghanistan, were former students and sons and daughters of neighbors. Freedom is recognized and treasured for the great cost of

Yes, Memorial Day is a day of memories. The American Legion voted Rosalie Burgher as their Citizen of the Year. Rosie was honored last week for her Woman of Distinction Award. When I think of Rosie, I remember taking my granddaughter to story hour. Then my mind wanders back to the days I took my own two sons to the library to hear Rosie read "There Was an Old Woman Who Swallowed a Fly" with hand puppets or felt board. Yes, Memorial Day is a day of memories.

Kingston, NY - Ulster County Executive Mike Hein and Ulster County Clerk Nina Postupack invite the public to the ribbon cutting ceremony and grand opening of the Matthewis Persen House on Saturday, May 25th at 10:15am. From local Historical and Heritage Societies to period re-enactors, the 2013 Persen House Season will offer something for everyone and for all families. Please visit the Persen House and take a self-guided tour or join one of our knowledgeable docents for a personal tour. There is a new exhibit that we are opening titled, Artifacts Uncovered: A Closer Look which is a year long exhibit that features an up close and personal look at some of the artifacts found in the archaeological dig done at the House. Take a peek at a 1200 BC projectile point and see the second only known Bodkin in New York State. Explore, learn and have some fun all at the same time.

There will be two season-long special exhibits: (1) Nina Postupack, the Ulster County Clerk will present Artifacts Uncovered: A Closer Look featuring an up close and personal look at some of the artifacts found in the archaeological dig done at the Persen House, including a 1200 BC projectile point and the second only known Bodkin in New York State. (2) The Reher Center for Immigrant Culture and History presents Rondout Revisited an exhibit that highlights the three stages in the history of the Rondout in Kingston, New York. There are many photographs to see and the The Reher Center will highlight the social and mercantile history of the 19th and early 20th century in the Rondout's waterfront.

The Persen House, named after its longest resident Matthewis Persen (1739-1819) and owned by Ulster County since 1914, has undergone extensive restoration since emergency repairs in 1999 revealed its historical significance. A Historic Structure Report discovered that it was built in five phases from 1661 to 1922. The house even pre-dates the formation of Ulster County.

For further information about this and other outreach programs of the Ulster County Clerk please call County Clerk Nina Postupack at 340-3040 or visit the Ulster County Alive website at www.ulstercountyalive.com. Organizations interested in hosting tours of the facility during the upcoming season should call the Ulster County Records Center at 340-3415 or visit the Ulster County Archives online www.co.ulster.ny.us/archives.

Birds on a Wire by Shauna Kanter

"VOICETheatre is mesmerizing" - Genzlinger, New York Times

"Thrillingly authentic" - Christopher, London Times

A Texas family's fight to stave off foreclosure during the Dust Bowl has shocking resonance with the national movement to save our communities from the threat of fracking. The Dust Bowl was the greatest ecological disaster of the 20th century and two thirds of the inhabitants stayed on their farms. Birds on a Wire follows the untold journey of a Jewish family as they experience the local bank's lies, infidelity as brothers fight for the same woman, and finally their acceptance of each other.

The Rositzky family worked hard, followed all the rules and because of their misguided treatment of the land helped create the Dust Bowl. The Rositzky farm comes to life in the historic Byrdcliffe Theatre for only four performances June 6th - 9th before it starts its run at the Sanctuary Arts Initiative 410 W. 40th St. New York, NÝ.

VOICETheatre is partnering with New Yorkers Against Fracking, Catskill Mountainkeeper, NYH2O and The Sane Energy Program to raise awareness and funds for the fight against fracking on a local level.

A benefit performance and reception for Catskill Mountainkeeper will take place at the June 6th production, including wine, hors d'oeuvres, and a presentation conducted by Kathleen Nolan, High Peaks Regional Director, Catskill Mountainkeeper

By examining past ecological transgressions and the emotional and economic effects on the Rositzky family, Birds on a Wire raises awareness of the ramifications of what happens to families, communities and countries when we harm the earth.

VOICETheatre has toured four continents with ground-breaking productions bringing political activism and disparate groups together in such performances as PUSHING THROUGH, the first play that brought Palestinians and Israelis on the same stage in I988, LA MAMA, US National tour, UK and Scotland.

For Birds on a Wire, Broadway veteran Dean Nolen, original Broadway cast MAMMA MIA! joins Innovative Theatre Award Nominee for Featured Role, Jessica Crandall, along with actors Jordan Feltner, Jo

Fallsburg High School seniors Sebastian Sanchez, Josh Carter, Gladys Flores, Kourtney Cannon, Jocelyn Hernandez-Castro, and Sherrod Williams were acknowledged. Accompanying them were Teacher-Mentor Ms. Ilana Kaufman, Superintendent Dr. Ivan Katz and Assistant Superintendent Dr. Matthew Evans.

Fallsburg High School has been committed to this program since October 2007. "Today's Students, Tomorrow's Teachers," recruits, mentors, trains, and places economically challenged and culturally diverse students as future teachers and leaders.

Participation in the program will provide them with everything they will need to know about being a teacher by the time they graduate from high school. The availability for scholarship monies will mean a lot to each student because of the high costs of colleges today. A number of Fallsburg graduates have been beneficiaries of these scholarships, including Mashale Straker at Oakwood University and Ethan Herrera at Queens College.

To learn more about the program, everyone can explore the web site www.tstt.org.

Honor Flight Veterans Thank Fallsburg Lions Club

World War Two army veteran Frank Ameduri and Vietnam War veteran Bob Heinz of Smallwood came to dinner with the Town of Fallsburg Lions Club on May 16, 2013 to thank the members for their generous donation of $400 that enabled both men to fly to Washington, DC on April 20 as part of Honor Flight. Memorial for the first time along with 80 other vets, mainly from the Hudson Valley area. It was an emotional journey that was filled with veterans groups welcoming them each step of the way, from a bus ride to Montgomery, NY, then to Steward Airport, to Reagan National Airport, to Iwo Jima Marine Corps Memorial, and the WWII Memorial. A really moving moment was watching the changing of the Marine Guard at the Tomb of the Unknown at Arlington Memorial Cemetery.

Heinz and Ameduri could not believe how well they were fed at every location along the way, including on the buses and airplanes. When it came time to have dinner at Frankie & Johnny's Restaurant with the Lions Club, they were still so full from the Honor Flight meals that they took home most of their meal for later! The Fallsburg Lions were happy to meet these men and were grateful that they were able to play a part in honoring their service to the country, especially just prior to Memorial Day.

Using Bobby Kennedy's phrase, "Nature is the infrastructure of our community," was certainly akin to the well-planned event. Due to the threat of a tornado, and the early dismissal of school on Wednesday, the Tri-Valley School Chorus was unable to participate as planned, to sing "Bridge Over Troubled Water". Instead, Ashley Exner, a Tri-Valley student who this summer will sing with the Sound of America Honors Band/Chorus as they travel to Europe to perform across six different countries, sang the selection a cappella.

Through photographs, artifacts, video, audio, interactive computer programs and hands on activities, visitors were immersed in the fascinating story of the water system's development. They could "Spin the Wheel" of dirty water, listen to lost town residents talk about being forced to move from their homes, touch rocks dug from hundreds of feet below the earth, play a "Beat the Clock" game, complete an aqueduct puzzle or build their own dam (including sinking covering and caissons) and dig a real tunnel.

Hugh Brodie and the Cosmic Ensemble Give Classic Jazz Show for Liberty Jazz Fest 2013 at Liberty Museum and Art Center

Hugh Brodie and the Cosmic Ensemble presented a classic example of rousing jazz and down to earth blues, as performed by local musicians at the Liberty

Jazz Fest 2013 at the Liberty Museum and Arts Center on Saturday, May 18, 2013.

In addition to the jammed packed museum, about two dozen musicians, technicians and former students stopped by to pay tribute to their mentor and friend, 80-yearold Hugh Brodie. It was sort of a belated birthday party. Even Billy Alfred from Hurleyville showed up with his entire band after finishing his earlier gig at Mr. Willy's. Billy Alfred was dressed in a cool 3-piece suite, with red tie, and leather fedora hat with an eagle feather to honor his friend.

Hugh Brodie is a world renown saxophonist, music writer and collegiate and high school lecturer and inspiring music teacher. He loves teaching children and adults alike. Hugh resides in Harris, New York.

In this Liberty Museum performance, the Cosmic Ensemble consisted of equally distinguished local musicians.

Barry Scheinfeld from Rock Hill played lead guitar; Mike Kull (Kerhonkson) handled the keyboards; Jim Curlin (Woodstock) played bass and Larry Balestra (Accord) played drums. Larry was a dedicated music teacher at Tri-Valley Central and Rondout Valley Schools for 36 years.

During this wild and diversified program, each member of the Cosmic Ensemble took off with invidiual solos. There was lots of hootin' and clappin'. During a short intermission, all the youngsters in the audience came on stage accompanied by Wild Banjo Billy Brenner from Grahamsville. Introduced as the Liberty Children's Philharmonic Choir, they gave a program of future, post-modem jazz singing "Itsy Bitsy Spider" and "5 Little Monkeys" accompanied by a washboard and tambourine.

Two of the talented kids belonged to "Story Laurie (McIntosh) Tales and Tunes for All Ages" (from Andes).

On this beautiful Saturday evening, starting at 7:00p.m., the entire jammed Museum was brightly lit, while outside the streets of Liberty were otherwise dark and deserted. The rows of six chairs were filled, and all the plastic chairs from the back, had to set out.

Admission was free. (Contd. Pg. 10)

We are proud that Bethel Woods presents great popular, country and classical entertainment. But on this special night, when it came to rich, complex jazz and scat, and ole timey blues in this tight and intimate setting, this Liberty Jazz Fest 2013 was every musical note the equal of the finest of Bethel Woods events.

Friends of Hugh Brodie have requested to have a local Jazz concert at the Bethel Woods Event Room, next to their Woodstock Museum.

Like nightclubs of yore, the audience was almost sitting on stage, careful not to trip over the microphones and wires.

Special appreciation must be given to Robert Dadras, the President of the Liberty Museum and Arts Center, and dedicated to the beautiful memory of Ursula M.S. Dadras, a dear friend and supporter. Equal credit must be given to the producer and coordinator Tony DeCicco, who is also a member of the Sullivan Performing Arts in Music. Among the highlights were Hugh Brodie's "Take the "A" Train" with its jazz solos. Also memorable was Hugh doing "scat" which he probably picked up from his relative Ella Fitzgerald. Hugh also explained the meaning of "Shoop Shoop."

Hugh Brodie also did his original composition entitled ETHIOPIA, about one of the cradles of mankind and Queen Makida who traveled to Israel for a tryst with King Solomon. It starts slowly with the pouring of water and gargling and rises to a joyous lively climax.

At the end of the show, all of the "native" musicians crowded the stage for a memorial "wide-screen"

Besides Hugh Brodie and the Cosmic Ensemble, and Bill Alfred, some of the musicians include Mike Cervone (White Lake), Roy and Donna Singer (Monticello), Cecil Allen (Monticello). Also in the photo was non-musician Elliot Schneider, who owned and operated the famous "Pursuit of Happiness" folk music house, for many years a musical landmark in Liberty.

Banjo Billy (Grahamsville) snuck into the picture. Next time maybe there will also be some food and refreshments.

To paraphrase the Sheriff in the shark movie, "Jaws," if the rousing success of the 9th annual Liberty Jazz Fest 2013 continues into 2014, at the Liberty Museum and Arts Center at 46 South Main Street, "you're gonna need a bigger boat."

DEP Announces Reopening of All Boat Launch Areas that were Closed Because of Damage from Hurricane Sandy Storm Toppled Thousands of Trees, Forcing the Closure of Boat Launches at Nine Reservoirs

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) today announced that 40 recreational boat launch areas at nine Cityowned reservoirs, primarily east of the Hudson River, that were closed because of storm damage from Hurricane Sandy have been reopened. The October hurricane toppled nearly 2,000 trees around the Cross River, Croton Falls, East Branch, Kensico, Muscoot, New Croton, Rondout, Titicus and West Branch reservoirs.

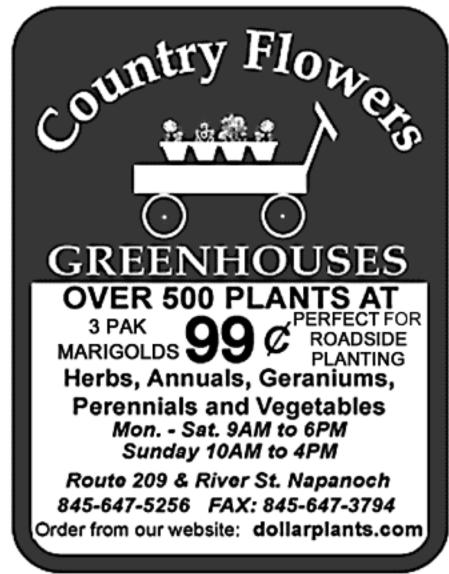

"DEP's reservoirs have long been an attraction for New Yorkers who enjoy outdoor recreation,' said Commissioner Carter Strickland. "Despite the damage caused by Hurricane Sandy, and thanks to the hard work of the dedicated men and women who deliver more than a billion gallons of safe drinking water to New York City every day, I am thrilled that our boat launches will be open for the hundreds of fisherman who plan to visit New York City's scenic reservoirs this Memorial Day weekend."

Following the storm, many trees at the nine reservoirs were leaning on or towards power lines, or fell in ways that made them a hazard to public safety. DEP's clean-up efforts began immediately following Sandy. However, workers could not clear many of the trees during the winter months because snow and wind made work conditions hazardous. The majority of boat launch areas were reopened before the April 1 start of fishing season and all of the remaining work was recently completed.

Approximately 90 percent of the wood from the fallen trees was either chipped to be beneficially reused or left intact at the sites for landscaping. The other 10 percent, consisting of straight logs, was recycled and used to build roadside parking lot bar-

The boat-launch sites are used almost year-round by a number of groups, including fishermen, DEP water quality staff, police, and state authorities who stock the reservoirs with fish.

DEP manages New York City's water supply, providing more than one billion gallons of water each day to more than 9 million residents, including 8.3 million in New York City, and residents of Ulster, Orange, Putnam, and Westchester counties. This water comes from the Catskill, Delaware, and Croton watersheds that extend more than 125 miles from the City, and the system comprises 19 reservoirs, three controlled lakes, and numerous tunnels and aqueducts. DEP has nearly 6,000 employees, including almost 1,000 scientists, engineers, surveyors, watershed maintainers, and others professionals in the upstate watershed. In addition to its $68 million payroll and $157 million in annual taxes paid in upstate counties, DEP has invested more than $1.5 billion in watershed protection programs-including partnership organizations such as the Catskill Watershed Corporation and the Watershed Agricultural Council-that support sustainable farming practices, environmentally sensitive economic development, and local economic opportunity. In addition, DEP has a robust capital program with over $14 billion in investments planned over the next 10 years that will create up to 3,000 construction-related jobs per year. SUNY Colleges Announce Affiliation with Brazilian Foundation for Field Research

Donald C. Katt, President of SUNY Ulster, announced a new affiliation with two SUNY colleges and an educational foundation in Brazil. He said, "Since 2007 SUNY Ulster has worked to establish a permanent biological research station in the State of Amazonas in Brazil. I am pleased to announce that goal has been attained."
Acting upon SUNY Chancellor Nancy L. Zimpher's Six Big Ideas and notions of shared services and systemness, Ulster County Community College's Biology Department and SUNY Oswego's Global Laboratory have joined forces. In January of 2013 Richard Cattabiani and Dr. Cleane Mederios, faculty members from SUNY Ulster and SUNY Oswego respectively, traveled to Novo Airão to be installed on the Board of Directors of Fundação Almerinda Malaquias. This foundation has built and maintains several permanent field stations in the State of Amazonas.

Deborah F. Stanley, President at SUNY Oswego said, "The new alliance forged by SUNY Ulster and SUNY Oswego will enable students and faculty from all SUNY colleges and universities to benefit from a permanent facility for scientific expeditions to the Amazon Rain Forest.'

SUNY Ulster and SUNY Oswego have already discussed opportunities with faculty from SUNY Albany, Cortland, Plattsburgh and Genesee Community College. Stanley added, "As our students and faculty pursue environmental research with colleagues in Brazil, they will make discoveries and build international ties that hold great promise for the future."

Novo Airão is a UNESCO World Heritage site so designated for its natural significance. During their January visit, the SUNY faculty members also met with the Mayor of the City of Novo Airão to promote a system to sustain efforts already begun by Fundação Almerinda Malaquias to support ecological education in the city's public schools.

SUNY Ulster will be offering its sixteenth BIO106: Tropical Field Ecology course in Brazil this summer from June 3 to 15. SUNY Oswego and SUNY Ulster are planning a combined course in Brazil in 2014.

Message from Congressman Gibson Dear Friend,

As we go into the Memorial Day Weekend, I wanted to share with you an update about my work in Washington as well as my upcoming schedule in the

First, for action in Congress, last week the House Agriculture Committee considered H.R. 1947, Federal Agriculture Reform and Risk Management (FARRM) Act of 2013. Commonly called the "Farm Bill" (not to be confused with the labor bill for farm workers the NYS Assembly is considering at the state level), the FARRM Act sets federal agriculture policy for five Representing our New York farmers on the House Agriculture Committee is an honor and a privilege. I believe we have the hardest working farmers in the nation here in New York and, in concert with their input and advice, this Farm Bill includes provisions that will ensure they have the ability to sustain and grow their operations. This bill represents a significant victory for our local farmers, overhauling the safety net program for dairy farmers, encouraging the growth and sustainability of local and regional agriculture and organic farming, protecting conservation programs, and helping beginning farmers access the capital they need to enter the field. For our rural communities, much of my legislation on expanding access to broadband was included in the bill and we also make reforms to better address Lyme Disease, a public health scourge in our area.

Most notably, many of these initiatives were driven by ideas and input from constituents - from local dairy farmers to leaders in the Young Farmers Coalition to local elected officials concerned with providing broadband to their community, this bill reflects the needs of NY-19. Additionally, while not perfect, the FARRM Act came together with a number of regional partnerships and after its strong, bipartisan passage in Committee (36-10), I look forward to its consideration on the House Floor. You can read more about what's included in the Farm Bill here:

http://gibson.house.gov/news/documentsingle.aspx?D ocumentID=334363.

On Wednesday, I voted once again to support the Keystone XL Pipeline. Growing up in Kinderhook, my family was working class - my Dad worked for Otis Elevator, and like many American families we went through some tough times in the 1970s. I vividly remember the challenges our family had when gas and home heating prices spiked, especially during the later part of that decade. As your Representative, it is my responsibility to fight for our working families, small businesses and farms in a balanced way, which means advancing comprehensive energy policies that foster energy independence and lower costs.

The Keystone Pipeline should be part of our energy plan. It has been pending approval for over 4 1/2 years unions. However, while we are striving to drive down gas and home heating costs for small businesses and is the best we can do going forward. We should also be striving to improve clean and renewal energy sources, relying on advanced technologies right here in our area as key components of this development and expansion.

Yesterday, I had the deep honor to be the senior speaker at the 82nd Airborne's All American Week Division Review at Fort Bragg. Before I retired from the Army, I was a brigade commander in the 82nd, and addressing over 14,000 paratroopers is something I will always remember. We should all be grateful for their we can ultimately achieve peace. It was a reflective beginning for this Memorial Day Weekend, when we honor those who lost their lives in defense of our freedom. You can read more about the Division Review here: http://www.fayobserver.com/articles/2013/05/24/1255852?sac=fo.local.

Over the next 10 days I am in New York, I will be visiting all 11 counties in the 19th Congressional District. This weekend, I will be attending Memorial Day events in Milan, Hyde Park, Kingston and Catskill. Next week, I'll be speaking at different schools, attending the opening of the Tops Supermarket in Greenville and the Kingston Farmers Market, touring BOCES in Sullivan County, visiting the Writer's Choice program at Duzine Elementary School in New Paltz, and many other stops and meetings.

Also, I will be holding Mobile Office Hours in Schoharie at the Town Hall on Wednesday, May 29 from 5 - 6:30 PM. These Office Hours are open to all constituents who want to come by and discuss any topic with me. For those who can't attend Mobile Office constituents where you can join a live conference call tions of higher education throughout New York State in for a similar discussion of policy issues. Both venues are an important way for me to get your feedback and opinion on legislation we're considering in the House.

I hope to see many of you over the next 10 days, and thank you for your continued interest in our updates.

Sincerely,

Congressman Chris Gibson

Bipartisan Legislation Would Protect Americans From Risks Posed By Exposure To Chemicals

Washington, D.C.-Today, U.S. Senators Frank R. Lautenberg (D-NJ), David Vitter (R-LA) Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) and Mike Crapo (D-ID) announced a groundbreaking, bipartisan agreement to modernize the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) and ensure the safety of everyday consumer products to better protect American families. Their legislation would significantly update and improve TSCA, which has proven ineffective and is criticized by both the public health community and industry. The Lautenberg-Vitter legislation would, for the first time, ensure that all chemicals are screened for safety to protect public health and the environment, while also creating an environment where manufacturers can continue to innovate, grow, and create jobs.

"For far too long, American families have been exposed to chemicals that have never been tested for safety," said Senator Gillibrand. "This bill will finally allow the EPA to test those chemicals that pose the greatest hazard to our children and pregnant women, and it will give the companies that manufacture the chemicals certainty that what they are selling is certified safe across all 50 States."

"A better educated workforce will benefit New York's economy. This investment would yield valuable economic benefits for New York State down the road."

Nearly 95 percent of all state-funded financial aid given to students who are New York State residents stems from TAP. Last year, TAP provided more than $920 million in financial assistance, aiding nearly 30 percent of the state's enrolled students.

DiNapoli's report estimates that additional TAP costs service and sacrifice, and it is through their strength that would be less than $20 million, an increase of less than 2 percent, if extended to current undocumented undergraduate students attending the City University of New York (CUNY) and State University of New York (SUNY) col-

To qualify for DREAM Act reaffirms what many of us already know TAP under New York's proposed Dream Act (A. 2597-Moya/S.2378-Peralta), undocumented students would have to either have graduated from a New York high school, which they attended for at least two years, or received a New York State GED. Applicants would have to apply to a postsecondary institution within five years of receiving their high school diploma or GED.

The NYS DREAM Act would also allow individuals to open a 529 College Savings account for the benefit of undocumented students and would create a DREAM Fund Commission, which would be authorized to raise private funds to provide scholarships to students of immigrant parents. DiNapoli's report estimates that 8,300 undocumented Hours in person, I also hold regular teletown halls with undergraduate students were enrolled in public instituthe fall of 2012, with the overwhelming majority enrolled in schools in the downstate region. More than three-quarters of the students attended the City University of New York (CUNY), accounting for less than 3 percent of CUNY's undergraduate enrollment. Another 19 percent of the undocumented students attended State University of New York (SUNY) colleges in the five counties surrounding New York City. A small number of undocumented undergraduate students attended SUNY colleges elsewhere in the state.

DiNapoli's report notes that the demand for higherskilled workers is increasing, especially in New York City. The unemployment rate for people with only a high school diploma was twice as high compared to those with a bachelor's degree in the downstate region in March 2013. The report found the median wage for workers with a bachelor's degree in the downstate region was 85 percent higher than those with only a high school diploma.

DiNapoli noted that financial aid will likely encourage more undocumented students to graduate high school and to attend college. The report estimates that a person with an associate's degree would pay more than $35,000 in additional state taxes over their working lifetimes - more than five times the $8,000 maximum TAP award for a traditional two-year degree. A person with a bachelor's degree would pay more than an additional $60,000 in state taxes

Currently, 17 states, including New York, offer instate tuition rates and three (California, New Mexico and Texas) also offer state-funded financial aid as proposed in the NYS DREAM Act.

"The NYS DREAM Act would make my dream become a reality and give everyone the same right to an education and a better future," said Pamela Dominguez, sophomore at LaGuardia Community College, DREAMer and leader at Make the Road NY.

The Latino and immigrant community owes a huge debt of gratitude to Comptroller DiNapoli for completing such an excellent cost-benefit analysis of the NYS DREAM Act. With the findings of this report by the Comptroller's office, there are no more excuses for Albany to hold up this critically important legislation that would open up higher education to thousands of bright, hard-working immigrant students," said José Calderón, president of the Hispanic Federation.

"This is another reason why the NYS DREAM Act must be passed this session. As a students' rights group, NYPIRG sees this as a no brainer, common sense piece of legislation that the legislature now has the power to make the dreams of many New Yorkers a reality," said Kevin Stump, higher education program coordinator at the New York Public Interest Research Group.

"Thanks to the Comptroller DiNapoli's study, we now have confirmed that the NYS DREAM Act is an economic imperative for New York. As the largest undocumented youth-led organization in New York, we find it unacceptable that hundreds of our members will be unable to attend college as they graduate from high

"The New York City Central Labor Council supports the NYS DREAM Act, because it would provide thousands of undocumented students a real path to realizing their educational potential. Comptroller DiNapoli's report delivers important information about how this pending legislation would impact our state's economy while helping students work toward their dreams," said Vincent Alvarez, president of the New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO.

"The Legislature must pass the NYS DREAM Act this session. The undocumented young people who attend CUNY and those who aspire to attend CUNY are highly motivated, talented students. Undocumented youth contribute to the economy, the life and culture of our state; they shouldn't have to wait another minute for a State Dream Act. With access to financial aid and opportunity programs, they will have the chance at a better life that is the right of every New Yorker," said Barbara Bowen, president of the Professional Staff Congress, the union that represents faculty and staff at CUNY.

"Comptroller DiNapoli's cost estimate for the NYS passing this legislation is the right thing to do for New York, both morally and economically. There are just a few weeks left in session, and we urge the legislature to do the right thing and pass the NYS DREAM Act now. New York's undocumented youths can't wait another year to make their dreams of higher education come true," said Chung-Wha Hong, executive director of the New York Immigration Coalition. For a copy of the report, visit:

Fallsburg Central School District Honors Memorial Day

President of the Fallsburg Central School District Board of Education Joe Collura has been active in the United States Navy for the past twenty three years. Most recently he was in Iraq serving with Seal Team 10. To honor America's fallen military in celebration of Memorial Day 2013, Senior Chief Collura created an outstanding assembly for the Fallsburg Junior/Senior High School on May 23, 2013.

Principal Michael Williams thanked all the students for their solemn attention throughout the hour long presentations and said that he had never been more proud of the students than on this day. They listened respectfully to brief but moving remarks by some of the veterans assembled by Collura. Hank Serviss, a Vietnam veteran asked everyone to take a moment during the festivities on the upcoming weekend to remember those who sacrificed so that we could enjoy the fruits of our lives in peace and safety. Robert Longo, long time art teacher at Fallsburg and WWII Army Air Corps veteran, remembered how close he came to not returning from the war. A test pilot died in a bomber that Longo was supposed to be training others in one day. Robert reluctantly had given up his seat to another man that insisted on accompanying that pilot.

County Legislator and Fallsburg graduate Gene Benson, who was a medic in Vietnam, remembered his father, an enlistee in the Army on December 12, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day. His dad was wounded three times in Europe serving the armies of Generals George Patton and Mark Clark. Vietnam Vet Brian Rogers thinks about a 20 year old buddy that had a baby daughter that he never saw and would never see. He remembered being with 300 Republic of Vietnam soldiers on Memorial Day Weekend in 1969. Only 50 survived a firefight, with Rogers earning a Silver Star after being missing in action and presumed dead. He asked the students to take a poppy from veterans during the weekend and say, "Thank you, I will remember."

Joe Collura concluded the remarks by remembering Tyler Trahan, a 20 year old that served with him in Iraq. Joe still carries a challenge coin for Tyler, who died trying to defuse an IED to "give people a sense of stability, a sense of safety, in a country whose people he really did not know."

A color guard from the 105th Air Lift of the NY Air National Guard made up of Staff Sgt. Daniel DiChiara and Senior Airman Aaron Fernandez brought in the flag for the National Anthem played by the Fallsburg Band and then folded the flag at the end of the assembly.

Principal Williams played "Taps" on the trumpet, and everyone heard a rousing rendition on video of the National Anthem by Madison Rising. Jack Ingber, a WWII veteran and former School Board President congratulated his successor in that position and told Joe Collura that he did an outstanding and inspiring job. Collura and the group were moving down to the Benjamin Cosor Elementary School to repeat the assembly for those students and staff.

To celebrate the milestone of the Trout Parade's 10th Anniversary, the CAS Arts Center is assembling a special exhibit to showcase the event's history and celebrate the joy of fishing. CAS is seeking artwork and artifacts featuring fish to represent this central part of our community's identity. This exhibit will be on display for one week through this year's Trout Parade, and participants are welcome to "borrow" their work to use in the Parade! All original artwork, photographs, historical artifacts, and unique fishing paraphernalia is welcome for submission. There is no fee to submit work. All pieces should be delivered ready to hang or display by Tuesday, May 28. Please include a brief note outlining the work's origin and description, as well as its title and artist's name if known.

For more information and details on how to participate in the 2013 Trout Parade or become a sponsor, please contact the Catskill Art Society at 845-436-4227 or info@catskillartsociety.org. You can also find the Trout Parade on Facebook at www.facebook.com/troutparade
