SUNY Sullivan Hosts Author Talk & Book Signing with Retired Senior Investigator Bill Moloney

Local author Bill Moloney

(Loch Sheldrake, NY) On Saturday, October 27 from 10:00 am - 12 noon, SUNY Sullivan will host local author Bill Moloney who will discuss his book, "Confessions of a Crime Scene Investigator." The event will take place in the Hermann Memorial Library Conference Room. It is free and open to the public.

Moloney, a retired New York State Police Crime Scene Unit Investigator, spent 26 of his 30 years with the State Police responding to and investigating homicides. "Confessions of a Crime Scene Investigator" chronicles his career in a gritty, dirty, and sobering profession that reflects none of the glamour so often highlighted on tele-vision. Story after story paints the picture of a satisfying, yet unpleasant and frequently stomach-turning job that will make you laugh, cry and cheer.

Moloney's graphic depictions of daily life in the crime scene world also uncover profound revelations on how we should live life, which he will discuss. According to Moloney, so much death can teach us much about life and how to live it. Moloney's book will be available for purchase, and he will hold a book signing following his talk. At 12:55 pm that day, SUNY Sullivan will also present the Metropolitan Opera: Live in HD per-formance of Puccini's La Fanciulla Del West in the Seelig Theater, located directly across from the Hermann Memorial Library. Soprano Eva-Maria Westbroek sings Puccini's gun-slinging heroine in this romantic epic of the Wild West, with the heralded return of tenor Jonas Kaufmann in the role of the outlaw she loves. Tenor Yusif Eyvazov also sings some performances. Baritone _eljko Lu_i_ is the vigilante sheriff Jack Rance, and Marco Armiliato conducts. (Contd. Pg. 4)

Chamber Music at St. Andrew's Presents The Baroque Aria Ensemble & Harpsichordist Kenneth Cooper in Orpheus and Eurydice - an Operatic Exploriation of the Famous Legend

On Saturday, October 27 at 7:30 pm (new time), Chamber Music at St. Andrew's in South Fallsburg offers a unique operatic exploration of the legend of Orpheus and Eurydice, a tragic love story. One of the most famous Greek myths, it has inspired many famed painters, such as Peter Paul Rubens and Nicolas Poussin, and many operas, songs and plays have been composed to honor these two great lovers who tragically lost the chance to enjoy their love on earth. The story of Orpheus and Eurydice has been told in many versions, including the Brazilian film, Black Orpheus (1959 Oscar winner). The earliest account comes from Ibycus (circa 530 BC), a Greek lyric poet. (Contd. Pg. 4)

Pre-registration is essential so sufficient materials are available. Space is limited, so please call 985-7700 or email info@timeandthevalleysmuseum.org to register.

About Cross stitch: Cross stitch is one of the oldest needle arts and still very popular today. Fragments of embroidered cloth have been found in tombs of early Egypt, however the importance of needlework as a decorative and historical artifact did not appear until the 11th century when William of Normandy invaded England in 1066. At the same time, workers in France recorded his victories in the Bayeux tapestry. It is not a sampler, but demonstrates the extraordinary skill of those who made it as it recorded a great deal about daily life in that time.

Women and young girls of the middle and upper classes were instructed in the art of needlework. These skills were necessary to "Mark" linens for the household and were used to teach the alphabet and numbers. Girls, and occasionally boys, as young as seven created some incredible samplers that survive in museums today. One basic stitch, the cross-stitch, was used to create these works. It is quickly learned and fun to stitch. In early days most stitching was done with silk or fine wool threads on linen. Today however, we can choose from a wider variety of threads and fabric backgrounds to create items that are practical and or decorative.

October's Full Moon – the Hunters Moon?

The moon shows its full face to Earth once a month. Well, sort of Sometimes - once in a blue moon - the moon is full twice in a month

The moon travels once around Earth every 27.3 days. It also takes about 27 days for the moon to rotate on its axis. So, the moon always shows us the same face.

As the moon revolves around Earth, it is illuminated from varying angles by the sun and what we are seeing when we look at the moon is reflected sunlight. Only when the moon, Earth and the sun are perfectly aligned is the moon 100 percent full, and that alignment produces a lunar eclipse.

The full moon that will appear next Wednesday, October 24th is commonly known as the Hunter's Moon or a san-guine or "blood" moon because of orange-red the glow it has due to the elevation of rise in the autumn atmosphere. The Moon Hunter's has long been regarded as a significant event in traditional folklore. It has been of interest to astronomers as it has a slight variation of a typical full moon

The Hunter's Moon appears in October, except once every four years when it doesn't appear until November. The Moon usually rises 50 minutes later each day, but things are different for the Hunter's Moon (as well as the September Harvest Moon). Both of these moons usually rise 30 minutes later on each successive night. Sunset and moonrise are not far apart creating prolonged periods of light during this time of the year. These moons have traditionally been used by hunters and farmers to finish their work.

This difference between the timing of the sunset and moonrise is due to its orbit. The angle the Moon makes with the horizon is narrower during this time of year. The Hunter's Moon is not bigger or brighter than any of the other full moons, however the time between sunset and moonrise is shorter.

The Hunter's Moon was generally accorded with special honor and as an important feast day in northern Europe where it was seen as a prime time to hunt as it was optimal for spotting prey. However, the term "Hunter's Moon" did not enter into usage for Europeans until after they made contact with Indigenous Americans when they began colonizing North America.

Native American tribes gave distinct names to the full moon, and the most well known full moon names come from the Algonquin tribes. The called the October full moon, pepewarr, which translated means, "white frost on grass". The Algonquin tribes had perhaps the greatest effect on the early European settlers in America, and the settlers adopted the Native American habit of naming the full moons.

Whatever you choose to call the October full moon – Hunter's moon, Sanguine or "blood" moon, the big wind moon, moon when water begins to freeze – does not matter. Take a few moments for yourself Wednesday night and bask in the wonder that is in the face of the full moon. Remember that throughout history, it has been an important part of our past, and will remain an important part of our future.

THE TOWNSMAN

Bearskin

Mysterious Book Report No. 350 by John Dwaine McKenna

There is a quiet, but ongoing - and growing - conflict in America, in which well-intentioned, ultra-wealthy individuals are buying up huge parcels of undeveloped land and forests, which they then put into Nature Conservancies . . . places where, they hope, all things of and in the earth will flourish as they did before the emergence of mankind. Human beings, due to their rapacious and destructive nature, are strictly forbidden from any contact with, or entry into, the designated area. Which puts the absentee owners into immediate conflict with the local, occasionally impoverished folks who've always hunted, fished, trapped and timbered on the now closed off property. It's a situation people living in the Catskill Mountains of upstate New York are painfully aware of. And, it's a conflict dripping with drama that's explored in an electrifying new debut novel that will keep readers bolted in place reading, from the first page until the last.

OCTOBER 18, 2018

Bearskin, (Ecco/Harper Collins, $26.99, 340 pages, ISBN 978-0-06-274279-7) by James McLaughlin is the raw, compelling and lyrical story of a man running away from a criminal past in the desert southwest and redeeming himself by escaping into an uncertain future as a caretaker on a remote northern Virginia forest preserve. Its owned of course, by a rich, aging California woman who's an ex-hippie and nature lover. Rice Moore is the caretakers name. He's a former mule who carried contraband back and forth across the Arizona-Mexico border, done time in a Mexican prison and is hiding out from the cartel assassing who've vowed to kill him. The Preserve, as it's referred to, is pristine, untouched for more than a hundred years ... and it's full of wild . hunted for their meat by locals using hounds, and coveted by poachers who sell the gall bladders and paws to the Chinese. Rice, a bad-ass who survived a black bears . . term in one of Mexico's most notorious prisons, is there to protect all the wildlife in the preserve, document the echosphere and, in his spare time, rebuild a neglected guest cabin. All-in-all, a typical non-profit job, where the workload far exceeds the pay. But when Rice discovers the remains of a bear, killed illegally on the Preserve, he takes it personally and becomes obsessed with catching the poachers . . . which brings unwanted attention from the law . . . and blows his carefully constructed false identity. Teaming up with the woman scientist he replaced, Rice fights to save not only the wildlife, but himself in this evocative and beautifully rendered first novel from an accomplished, and exciting new writer who has with an affinity for all things wild, and many more stories to tell. We're looking forward to them!

Grahamsville Rod and Gun Club News

The Grahamsville Rod & Gun Club held it's monthly meeting for October on the 4th, with 15 members present. Two new members joined the club, Craig TerBush and James Schulte. President Gary TerBush reported that the club made out well at the Sportsmen's Flea Market. Thanks to all the vendors and to all the people who came to support the Tractor Club, the Parks and Recreation and the Grahamsville Rod and Gun Club. Hank Samyn reported that the Kay Danchak Memorial Youth Day was a great success with almost 80 kids attending, catching fish from the fish pond, building bird houses, shooting bows and BB guns and playing games. Prizes were given out to the winners of the events and every child went home with a hat and tee shirt and a gift bag. Hot dogs, soda, ice cream and cotton candy was given to all kids. It was a great day to see these kids with their parents or grandparents, enjoying a day of outdoor fun. Thanks to all who made this day possible.

At the end of the meeting, George Smith gave a seminar on building Bamboo Fly rods. George will be making a Custom Bamboo Fly Rod to be given to the club, to be raffled off. George showed the club a couple of rods he made and the members were amazed by the quality and beauty of these rods. George is very particular on selection of the bamboo and the quality of material that goes into the rods. The labor and workmanship he puts into these rods reflects in every aspect of the rod. There is only one word to describe the rods that George makes and that is "PERFECTION"! Thank you, George. Christmas is just around the corner and the perfect gift could be a good pocket knife, hunting knife or fishing knife. Give Gary TreBush a call at 985-7628 or Harold Buley at 985-2813. All profits of the sales of these knives go to the club to be put back into the community by stocking fish and game and supporting the youth outdoor activites.

THE TOWNSMAN

The Olive Jar- By Carol LaMonda

Hurricane Michael

Even though Hurricane Michael, just 2 miles an hour shy of a CAT-5 storm, hit the Gulf Coast of Florida, it hit a little too close to home. I have two dear cousins who have homes there in that small quaint community of 1,200 with its "sugar sand" white beaches and turquoise waters. I have a hard time picturing the places I know from our visits there as the war-zone debris the storm left in its wake. At this point in the recovery, they are relying on aerial photos to assess the damages because the devastation is so awful that residents cannot return home.

There was a little time for the evacuation, so I picture my cousin quickly filling up her car with things that might be sentimental or irreplaceable. As they sit in a motel room in the next state, she must be grateful to be alive and mournful of the loss of home and belongings. I started to think about what was really important in my house. What would I grab in a hurry to salvage from wind and flood? I know in my heart my cousin would grab photos, her dad's paintings, and her collection of her father's textile patterns. Hmm. What would I take?

I know I would grab my jewelry, not because of its monetary value but because each piece was a gift from my husband or some relative on some occasion. One diamond bracelet he gave me for my birthday was the duplicate diamond bracelet he gave me four months before on Christmas. He must have really liked it, so I kept both. Little did he know then he would have two granddaughters so each can have one someday. Each bracelet, earrings or necklace is tied to some moment in time worth remembering.

Next, I would grab my photo albums from the shelves. Remember when we actually saved real photos? Again they would be the record of the past. I would also take my iPad and Mac computers for that is where my writing and photos now reside.

My dog, Hudson, of course. I might grab my paintings that hang in my home and the framed, fading, sepia photos of ancestors and the family pictures of kids and grandkids. Anything else, I could replace.

Strange what becomes valuable. Hopefully the people of Mexico Beach and Panama City can rebuild and reconstruct their lives. Hopefully they can house the treasures they saved as they fled from the fury of Hurricane Michael.

Luckily, no wave or gust of wind can take away their memories, for that is all that is really important.

Message from Director of Olive Free Library

I want to express my sincere thanks to the Catskill Watershed Corporation for the grant that allowed the library to have Arm-of-the-Sea Theater perform at Olive Day. As always, the performance was an enthralling experience that educated and entertained everyone.

I am thrilled to welcome Megan Haaland to the staff at the library. Megan has been an excellent addition to the team, and I encourage all patrons to stop in and introduce yourself to Megan to make her feel welcome at our library.

If you haven't had a chance yet to see our current art exhibit, Field Work by Thomas Sarrantonio, I highly rec-ommend that you find the time to do so before the last day of the show, Saturday, October 27. All Hudson Valley artists are invited to show their small works in the Olive Free Library Community Gallery. All genres of art are considered, but work must be wall-hung. The exhibition will open on Saturday, November 10, 2 - 4 pm and will run through January 5, 2019. If you are interested in submitting work to be considered for this show, please read the submis-sion guidelines. Submission deadline is Monday, October 15.

We have a new program starting on Thursday, October 4 at 1:00 p.m. Sensory Play and Learn Group for children 3-36 months old. There will be an emphasis on talking, singing, writing, reading and playing to help our earliest learners gain an understanding of their world through sensory activities. See you at the library!

Claryville - Winter break is an exciting time for children to relax and play while school is not in session, but it can also be stressful for working parents who need to find childcare. Frost Valley YMCA will be holding a Winter Break Day Camp for children between the ages of four and16 on December 26-28 and December 31st from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

"Winter is an ideal time for children to explore the great outdoors, get some much-needed exercise, and try new things. Winter Break Day Camp at Frost Valley fills children's days with healthy well. Thanks Jane and all you TIC teachers! Acid rain report: Jody Hoyt reports during September there were 7 measurable events with 11.17 inches of rain having a 5.3 weighted average pH, as measured in Boiceville. That's almost two feet of rain recorded in Boiceville during August and September. By comparison in Sept. 2017 there were 6 events with 2.77 inches of rain with a 5.8 weighed pH.

Membership: As of Oct. 11th we stand at 114 chapter members. This month we welcome

Victoria Lawrence of Lake Katrine, Russell Martin of Glenford, Keenan O'Meara of Olivebridge, and Ryan Trapani of Olivebridge. Welcome one and all. Closing thoughts: One of my favorite angling authors is Roderick L. Haig-Brown. In his book, Fisherman's Fall, the author noted the following, "Fall fishing is a revival after the quieter times of summer. Cooler nights and the melt of early snowfall in the mountains bring falling water temperatures and rains freshen the streams. Shadows are longer, shielding the pools. The fish are more active and there is a touch of urgency about it all a facilize that it all a facilizes that pools. The fish are more active and there is a touch of urgency about it all, a feeling that it cannot last very long so one had better get out and be doing."

If you haven't fished in a while, better do it soon, as autumn can be the nicest time of year but also the shortest.

THE TOWNSMAN

The Scene Too By Jane Harrison

I did something really different on Saturday. Firstly I drove to Kingston, which in and of itself is not unusual but the fact that it rained the whole way while the sun shone brightly, now that was most strange and wonderful. And I saw it as a precursor to why I was going to Kingston.

I was on my way to attend the 4th Annual Living History Cemetery Tour at the beautiful Old Dutch Church.

This event is produced by THEATRE ON THE ROAD. Six actors and actresses would be portraying the ghosts of prominent and/or historical figures either born in Kingston or Kingston natives, giving their audience a taste of how they may have been as people in life while talking about their accomplishments.

There was Roswell Randal Hoes, who discovered all of the birth, death and marriage records in the attic of the church when he was very young and made it his life's work to compile these same records into one work. Being a lover of minutia myself, I could understand the passion of this endeavor.

There was Jacob Adrianson, who as a teen, was the first to lose his life in the Esopus Indian war and who actually stands on the tree stump that marks his grave in the cemetery. He could point to boundaries of the village of Wiltwyck, which gave me perspective on how a tiny village grew into the Kingston I know today.

There was the most prim and proper Victorian lady Mary Forsythe, daughter of the notorious judge John Forsythe whose underhanded dealings led him to abandon his family and flee. Mary wrote prose and hymns and was very involved in the plight of orphaned children. But in the portrayal, you got the feeling she never lived down her father's legacy.

In contrast, was Julia Dillion. She was a contemporary of Mary's in philanthropic work, but her father left her an iron foundry which she ran, quite a feat. Julia was well traveled, an artist and far ahead of her time in what she could (was allowed to) do as a Victorian woman.

Like Forbes, both have demonstrated their commitment and passion in the field of disability services

Michael Linden, Chair of the New Hope Community Board of Directors, said of Forbes, "Jim Forbes will be sorely missed by the entire organization, but we wish him all the best in his next endeavors.

Under Forbes' leadership, New Hope Community introduced several inno-vative programs including experiential learning through such programs as an organic farm, created in collaboration with SUNY Sullivan, and supported employment services made possible through key business partnerships. In 2015, New Hope Community was awarded the coveted Person-Centered Excellence National Accreditation from the Council on Quality and Leadership (CQL). Debbie McGinness joined New Hope Community as CEO, effective October 1, 2018. She will be responsible for executive leadership for New Hope Community and its affiliates and will develop and implement strategic, long range initiatives. McGinness started her career in nursing and advanced long-range initiatives. McGinness started her career in nursing and advanced to an executive leadership position within the field of I/DD in the mid 1980's. In 1990, McGinness founded a direct support professional staffing agency, Select Temps, Inc., which serves families and provider agencies within the I/DD field throughout the greater metropolitan area. In 2010 she co-founded, and has served as the CEO, of Select Human Services, Inc. (SHS) based in Pleasantville, NY. SHS supports hundreds of families and individuals through a myriad of I/DD community-based supports and services throughout the Hudson Valley region and proudly became New Hope Community's newest affiliate on July 1, 2018 affiliate on July 1, 2018.

McGinness will report to the New Hope Community Board of Directors, the governing body for both New Hope Community and SHS. In welcoming McGinness, Linden said, "We are so pleased to have Debbie McGinness and all the skills she possesses in the position of CEO. Her vision and compas-sion make her the best person to shepherd New Hope Community into the future

Reporting to McGinness in the role of President is Bhakar Singh, who served as Vice President of Strategic Transformation and Programs for New Hope Community. Bhakar will be responsible for the operation of New Hope Community. Singh, who joined New Hope Community in November 2017, worked for nearly 20 years within The Arc New York organization (formerly NYSARC). More recently, he was senior associate executive director for chapter relations for the State Office of the Arc New York York, the state's largest nonprofit developmental disabilities organization

Earlier in his career, he served as chief operating officer of The Arc of Ulster-Greene.

"Bhakar was a tremendous addition to our senior staff and in his new role as President, our dream team is complete," said Linden.

October is Farm to School Month! SULLIVAN COUNTY, NY- October is National Farm to School Month. For four weeks, millions of schools, families, and communities around the country celebrate the movement that connects children to fresh, healthy food and supports local agricultural economies; Sullivan County is no exception! In Sullivan County, school buildings in every district, led by Sullivan BOCES, host special events and activities highlighting agriculture and fresh farm foods in a variety of ways. Supporting district efforts is a consortium of community organizations including Cornell Cooperative Extension Sullivan County (CCESC), Sullivan Renaissance, Sullivan County Public Health Services, New Hope Community, Boys and Girls Club, SUNY Sullivan, and Catskill Mountainkeeper.

Through funding, outreach, and educational workshops for students, teachers, and cafeteria staff, these partners are helping districts introduce students to farms and farmers' markets through field trips, taste testing of interesting fruits and vegetables like pumpkin and ginger, what it takes to sow and grow food for an entire population, and even how to manage waste in school, at home, and on the farm.

With edible gardens or garden clubs in nearly every school district; compost programs; salad bars; horticulture, agriculture, and nutrition curriculum in the classroom and in afterschool pro-grams; farm tours to Hope Farm at SUNY Sullivan, Apple Pond Farm, Willow Wisp Farm, and Stonewall Farms; urban gardening visits to Evergreen Community Garden; video showings from Beaverdam Brook Farms, Majestic Farm, and Somewhere in Time Farm; cooking demon-strations and Chef in the Classroom, Sullivan County's farm to school efforts have come a long

Limited budgets, storage, equipment, staff training, food safety, and seasonal food availabili-ty provide a range of challenges to school districts' efforts to offer local, fresh food options on cafeteria trays. That's why, in Sullivan County, the community has come together to offer support to both school district faculty, and local farmers, in expanding and institutionalizing farm to school efforts across the county.

Farm to school programs are critical in so many ways to improving the health of Sullivan County's students and sustaining the region's agricultural economy. Increasing students' access to fresh fruits and vegetables sets them up to make healthful choices into adulthood, and also prepares them for learning in the school environment. In addition, with an annual agricultural economic impact exceeding $120 million in Sullivan County, farm to school programs are raising a generation of youth who understand the importance of buying locally grown foods.

For school districts and producers that need help navigating the maze of federal regulations for school nutrition, and for parents interested in learning the benefits of supporting farm to school efforts in their local schools, the U.S. Department of Agricultural has a Farm to School web page full of resources, toolkits, grant programs, and contacts. The public can learn more at http://www.fns.usda.gov/farmtoschool.

"Our Office for the Aging does an amazing job providing outstanding programs for our senior citizens. The Annual Public Hearing provides an opportunity for seniors to learn about the services offered, comment on current programs, offer suggestions for improving services, and share ideas for additional programs that would be beneficial to seniors," said County Executive Mike Hein. "I urge seniors to attend the County Executive Mike Hein. "I urge seniors to attend the hearings and I look forward to their valuable comments and contributions.

Shelley Wagar, Director, Ulster County Office for the Aging (UCOFA)

The UCOFÁ annual public hearings are vital to the operational programming of the agency," said Shelley Wagar, Director of the Office for the Aging. "The UCOFA depends on the feedback of our services and programming. One of the comments we hear frequently is to hold more events in the outlying areas of the County. So, to that end, we have arranged to have three sites for our public hearings so that more seniors from all over the County may attend and provide us with feed-back and information. UCOFA encourages seniors to attend one of the three hearings. It is an honor and a privilege to serve Ulster County seniors and we want them to know this and to hear from them!"

Jay and Molly: Pride of Ulster County

The Ashokan Center and its founders and directors, Jay Ungar and Molly Mason, were honored recently by Ulster County for their contributions to the community and their dedication to eco-friendly practices.

The Center was recognized as an Ulster County Green Business Leader, while Jay and Molly were granted the Pride of Ulster County award for their role in the evolution of the environmental and cultural Center which marks its tenth anniversary this year.

The Center was purchased from SUNY New Paltz in 2008 with the assistance of then-governor George Pataki's office, the NYC Department of Environmental Protection, and the Open Space Institute. This allowed the non-profit Ashokan Foundation to maintain 385 acres as a nature preserve and educational institution, and to construct 24,000 square feet of new, sustainably designed buildings on the campus, funded in part by the Catskill Watershed Corp.

A solar energy project that will provide 100 percent of the Center's electrical needs is in progress and will be completed this year. Nearly 5,000 students annually taking part in envi-CWC education grants. Events and themed camps welcome another 7,000 people to Ashokan each year.

To Ulster County Voters: Right now, you are hearing a lot about national and state elections. Without question those races are incredibly impor-tant. But this year, there is an equally important race right here in Ulster County. Sheriff Paul VanBlarcum has been faithfully serving the residents of Ulster County with incredible dedication and commitment his entire life. We are truly lucky to have someone with Paul's credentials, who grew up right here in Ulster County, decide to stay local and put his training and skills to work for our families.

I believe that Sheriff VanBlarcum has time and again demonstrated his ability to successfully manage a department with hundreds of employees while safeguarding Ulster County taxpayer dollars through responsible budget manage-ment. I have served on the Legislature's Law Enforcement & Public Safety Committee for the past six years and have seen first hand Paul's dedication to the hard-working men and women who work for him, as well as to the residents he serves. He is always looking for ways to improve services and save taxpayer dollars. During his twelve years in office Sheriff VanBlarcum has establishedURGENT which has seen unprecedented cooperation between law enforcement agencies in the county and resulted in measurable reductions in drug and gang related crime, created the Internet Crime Against Children Detail, established the Defense Tactics Program for Women, worked with federal officials to secure federal funding through the designation of Ulster County as a High Intensity Drug Traffic Area, established an Inmate Medication Assisted Treatment Program to help combat the Heroin and Opioid epidemic, initiated a Body Camera Program to protect officers and residents, and so much more.

Paul brings a common-sense approach to the Sheriff's Office. He is dedicated to the job and to public service. He has served us faithfully his entire life and has earned our support. Please join me on November 6th in casting your vote to Re-Elect Sheriff Paul VanBlarcum.

Yours truly,

Dean Fabiano

Reservoir Cleanup Day Volunteers Remove A Record Amount of Debris and Recyclables from Shorelines

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) today announced that hundreds of volunteers from across the Catskill and Hudson Valley collected an estimated 4,650 pounds of trash and recyclables during this year's Reservoir Cleanup Day, making it the largest haul since DEP began the annual event five years ago. A total of 410 volunteers participated in this year's cleanup. The effort to remove debris, litter and recyclables from the shorelines at nine reservoirs was led by school groups, environmental advocates, business leaders, local nonprofits and watershed citizens

The Sept. 30 event comprised cleanup efforts at eight water supply reservoirs, including Ashokan, Cannonsville, Neversink and Pepacton reservoirs in the Catskill Mountains, and at East Branch. Kensico. Lake Gleneida. Muscoot and New Croton reservoirs in the Hudson Valley. In total, volun-teers collected more than 346 bags of debris and recyclables. The haul weighed a total of more than 4,650 pounds. The results marked an increase from last year's cleanup, at which 300 bags and 4,500 pounds of debris were collected. In many cases, debris collected at the sites had blown onto the reservoir property from nearby roadsides, had washed up along the shores from past storms, or was left behind at access areas used by the public for fishing and boating.

"I want to thank the volunteers who participated in Reservoir Cleanup Day for their hard work and commitment to protecting our shared natural resources," Commissioner Vincent Sapienza said. "The results from our cleanup event are impressive, but they also underscore the need for greater education. Too many people are still carelessly disposing their garbage. DEP is committed to teaching more people about outdoor ethics and the principles of leaving no trace when recreating on our lands and waters.'

"DEP has been a great partner in the effort to promote awareness about marine debris in at many shoreline sites across New York," said Don Riepe, northeast director for the American Littoral Society, which organizes the broader annual cleanup of shorelines throughout the state. "The City's annual Reservoir Day Cleanup has become one of the largest New York State Beach Cleanup Day events and we're proud of their commitment to helping keep our shorelines clean."

Social Security Beneficiaries to Receive Significant COLA Bump in 2019

The Social Security Administration announced a 2.8 per-cent cost of living adjustment (COLA) for 2019 – the largest increase in seven years. With over 60 million beneficiaries on Social Security, these benefits often serve as a financial lifeline for our seniors in Upstate New York. As estimates show that over 15 million seniors rely on their social security benefits to stay out of poverty, it's important that their payments continue to adequately reflect the cost of living. Catskill Art Society to screen

the "Berlin" Episode NY Catskill Art Society will screen the 'Berlin" episode from Season 9 of Art in the Twenty-First Century, featuring artists Olafur

Eliasson, Natalie Djurberg and Hans Berg, Hiwa K, and Susan Philipsz at 6pm on Saturday, October 20 at the Laundry King, 65 Main Street, Livingston Manor, NY. The screening will be followed by a Q&A with Tina Kukielski, the Executive Director and Chief Curator and the minadel area duears from BAVA follows episode's producers from RAVA films.

A city still in the midst of a post-Cold War cultural and economic rebirth, since the 1990s Berlin has become a haven for artists from all over the world-a free zone where experimenta-tion, individual expression, and international influences converge. From creating large-scale public projects to intimately personal ones, the artists in this episode demonstrate the diversity of practice and sensibilities in the German capital, expose its complicated history of war and migration, and convey hopes for finding systems that foster a better tomorrow.

With the support of his interdisciplinary studio, Olafur Eliasson produces epic, technically sophisticated sculptures and installations, using natural elements like light, water, and air to alter viewers' sensory perceptions. From 120-foot-tall waterfalls floating above New York's East River to chunks of arctic ice installed in a Parisian plaza, his immersive environments, public installations, and architectural projects are motivated by the belief that art has the power to make viewers think differently about the world. Expanding the role of the artist, Eliasson contemplates how art can func-tion as a "civic muscle," offering solutions to global problems like climate change and renewable energy.

In their apartment and studio, the sculptor-musician duo Nathalie Djurberg and Hans Berg create playful and bawdy clay-animation films and installations that riff on fables, allegories, and myths. Djurberg's intuitive process of handcrafting clay figures, building sets, and meticulously photographing the tableaus to create each frame reveals the mix of dark and sweet impulses that motivate the work. Berg, with his roots in Berlin's electronic-music scene, creates the hypnotic com-positions that bring the animations to life.
